

TEST BAN GETS BIG 'AYE'

—CAMBODIA TO FALL TOO—

Sihanouk Says Reds Have Won

... IN SOUTH VIET NAM

Phnom Penh, Cambodia (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk says he is convinced the Communists already have won the battle for South Viet Nam and feels that neutral Cambodia eventually will fall to the Communists.

The 41-year-old Cambodian chief of state has said the same thing before about Laos, another troubled neighbor.

Writing in the French-language weekly Realites Cambodgiennes, Sihanouk discounted President Charles de Gaulle's suggestion last month for elimination of foreign influence from both North and South Viet Nam.

"This appeal by Gen. De Gaulle seems to me unrealistic with respect to North Viet Nam and already too late for South Viet Nam," Sihanouk said. "It is a great shame. The fate of Viet Nam appears to me to be sealed. That of my own country certainly will be also some time later. At least we shall have the slim consolation of having frequently warned the Western world."

The prince said he felt immediate neutralization of South Viet Nam would stop the war there and improve international relations, but probably would retard the Communist advance only temporarily.

He blamed American policies in Asia.

"Our American friends are remarkable organizers, brilliant technicians and excellent soldiers," Sihanouk said. "But their incontestable realism stops short of the realm of politics, where the attitude of the ostrich seems to them to conform best to their interests."

Sihanouk has maintained a policy of neutrality since Cambodia declared its independence from France in 1953. His government long has feuded with immediate neighbors, but has ties with all the big powers on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Cambodian officials and most of the French community here appear to share Sihanouk's gloomy view of South Viet Nam.

But a group of anti-Communist Vietnamese rebels living in exile here feel South Viet Nam still may be saved.

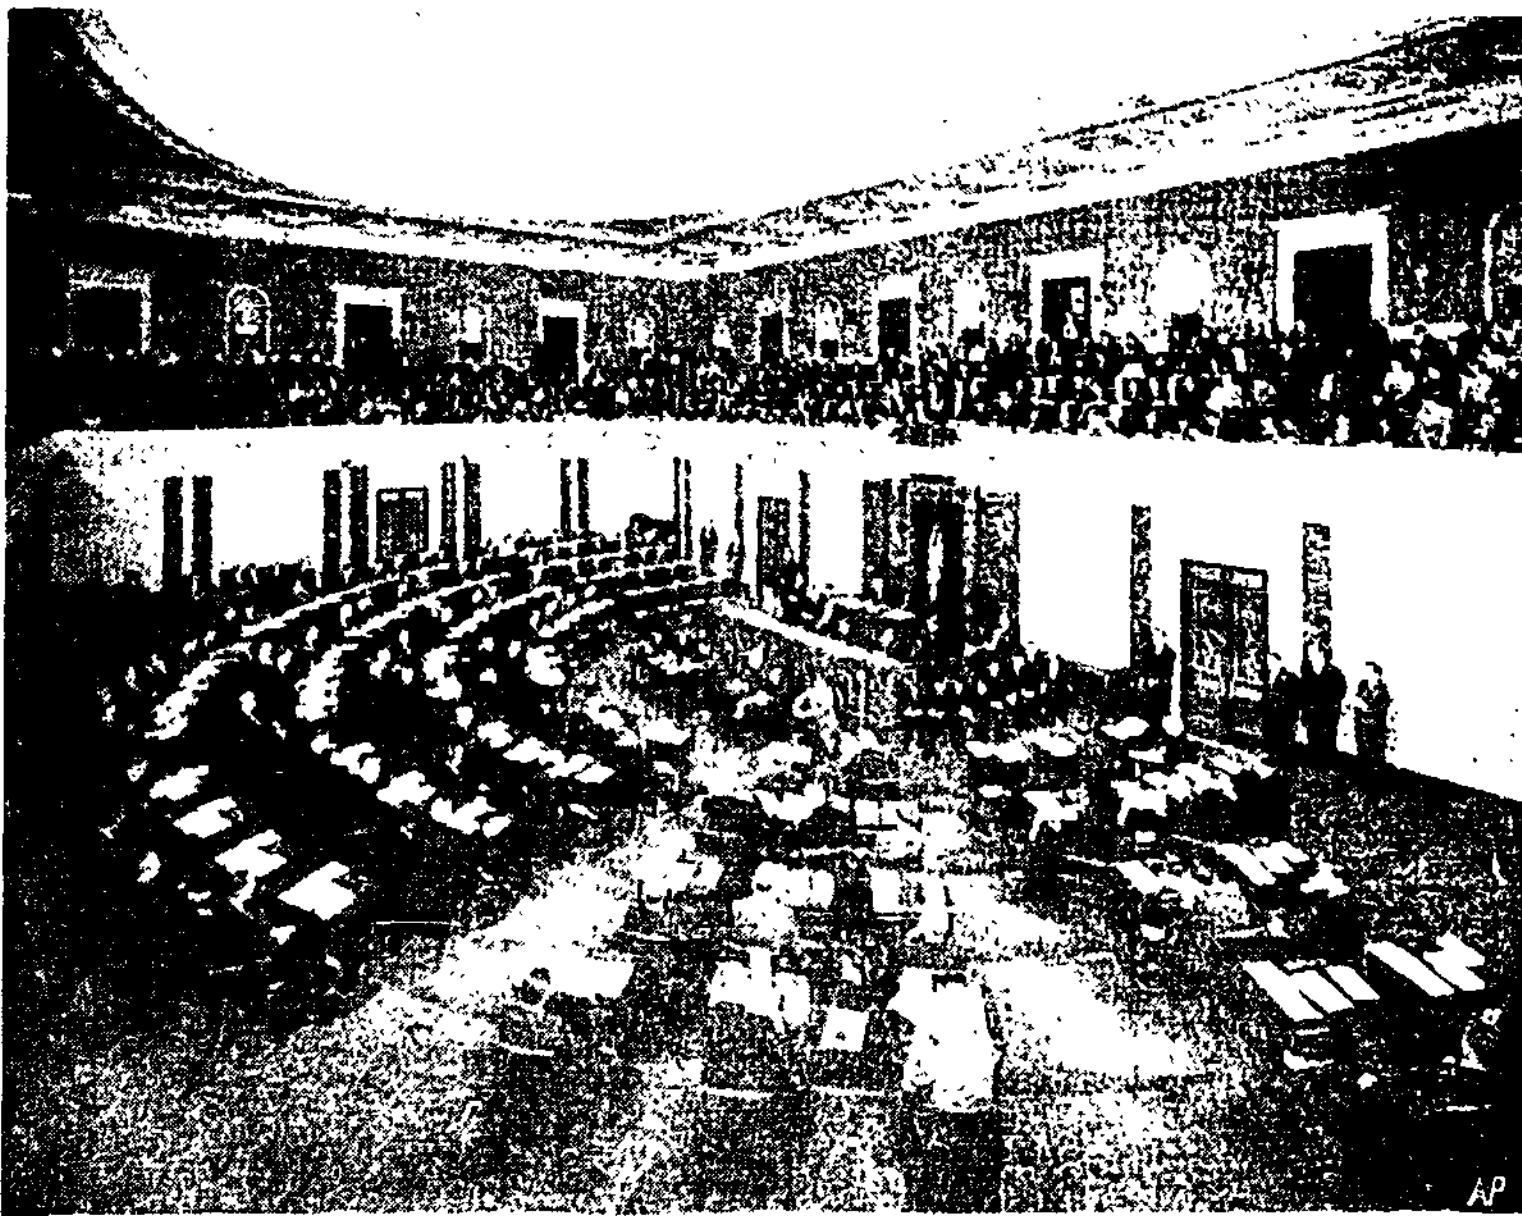

One of these is Col. Nguyen Chanh Thi, sentenced to death in absentia three months ago in Saigon for his role in leading an unsuccessful uprising against Diem in 1960.

Great Mass

"The great mass of South Vietnamese people do not support Communism," Thi said.

"For many Vietnamese, the (Communist) Viet Cong seems to be the only group actively opposing the hated government and that is the great strength of the Viet Cong. We non-Communist oppositionists—particularly the politicians—are weak and divided because of the Diem government's oppression. But if only the Americans would withdraw their aid from Diem, his regime would fall immediately."

"You need not worry about the Communists taking over. The young officers in the army would seize power immediately and form a new, popular government and they would push for really free elections quickly. The Communist problem would disappear swiftly."

Senate OK's Uncut Defense Bill

... $47.3 BILLION APPROPRIATED UNANIMOUSLY

Washington (AP) — The Senate swept aside all major efforts to cut the administration's $47.3 billion defense appropriations bill Tuesday and approved it 77 to 0 in a swift and crushing display of power.

The unanimous passage sends the bill back to the House which had previously approved $258 million less than the $47,339,707,000 voted by the Senate.

A House-Senate conference committee is expected to iron out the differences.

The brief floor battle, spanning only a few hours of debate, was marked by only one close call: A 45-43 turnaround of an effort by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., to trim one per cent or nearly $158 million from the $15,783,747,000 earmarked for new military hardware.

Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., floor manager for the bill, then led administration forces in overwhelming a $2.2 billion cut proposed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D. The vote was 71 to 2.

And then just before final passage the Senate scuttled 72 to 5 an effort by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to trim $60 million from $103 million designated for development of a new mobile army missile of medium range. It is designed for launching from railroad cars, trucks, ships or fixed sites.

Russell did steer through one change by voice vote — $31.7 million reduction in the military hardware section. Russell said he had been assured the money is for Army missiles that can be deferred.

The quick approval, contrasting with the two weeks the Senate took to approve the limited nuclear test ban treaty, provides more than $12 billion for the Army, more than $18.5 billion for the Air Force and $2.2 billion for other defense agencies.

The total is $16 billion less than the President requested, which in turn was $12.75 billion less than the armed forces requested before the President sent his budget to Congress.

$1 Billion Less

Russell said this year's total, as approved by the Senate, also is $1 billion less than Congress voted last year. But he pointed out that actual defense costs would be more than $53 billion for the current fiscal year when other bills carrying funds for military construction, housing and foreign assistance are added.

Pact Clears Senate 80-19

... KENNEDY PLEASED

Washington (AP) — The Senate voted overwhelming approval Tuesday of the historic treaty banning all but underground nuclear tests.

Giving President Kennedy the big "aye" vote he asked, the senators lined up 80 to 19 in favor of the pact.

The only absentee, Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., was listed as supporting the treaty.

Kennedy issued a statement expressing his pleasure at the winning margin. He commended leaders of both parties and Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for their "pamstaking work" in bringing the treaty "to this highly satisfactory vote."

"The wide support of the senators of both parties given to the treaty after an extensive and wide ranging debate is evidence not only that the treaty has wide public support but also of the collective judgment that this instrument is good for the people of the United States and people all over the world," Kennedy said.

Even before the Senate voted Kennedy was quoted by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana as having "expressed delight at this single but substantial step in the direction of peace."

Serious

There never had been any serious doubt about ratification, but nearly two weeks ago, as some opposition to the pact appeared to be building up, Kennedy had sought to stem it with these words:

"If we are to give grudging support, if this small clearly beneficial step cannot be approved by the widest possible margin in the Senate, then the nation cannot offer much leadership or hope for the future."

Those words plus Kennedy's assurance that he will keep the nation's nuclear arsenal in alert readiness to guard against any cheating by Russia gave him the resounding support he sought. Part of the support was based on the desire expressed by some senators to halt the increase in radioactive fallout.

Precisely

As it turned out, the margin was precisely that predicted by Fulbright over a month ago. That was before his committee's 14 days of hearings on the pact and the Senate's 12 days of debate in which senators made 125 speeches.

Fulbright had first said the vote would be 80 to 20 and "less than 20" votes against the treaty.

Since 99 senators voted, 66 were required for the two-thirds majority for ratification. Thus there were 11 more votes than necessary.

Supporting ratification were 55 Democrats and 25 Republicans. Opposed were 11 Democrats and 8 Republicans.

The Democrats who voted against the treaty were Sens. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, James O. Eastland of Mississippi, Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, Russell B. Long of Louisiana, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, Richard B. Russell of Georgia, John Stennis of Mississippi, Herman E. Tamm of Georgia and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

The Republican opponents were Sens. Wallace F. Bennett of Utah, Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Len B. Jordan of Idaho, Edwin L. Mechem of New Mexico, Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Milward L. Simpson of Wyoming, and John G. Tower of Texas.

Contrast

In contrast to the sparse attendance during the floor debate, all 99 senators were on hand for the vote. Most gathered half an hour earlier for unprecedented photographing of the senators in action. As a result the roll call was one of the speediest in recent history, taking about 10 minutes.

The next step in making the treaty effective will be the formal ratification by Kennedy, which officials said could take place within a few days.

Finally, the pact will become effective when instruments of ratification are deposited by the United States, Britain and Russia in each of their respective capitals. This unusual procedure was agreed on when the pact was negotiated in Moscow last July.

When Kennedy signs the "instrument of ratification," he must sign four "original copies." No carbons are used for a document of this importance.

So far 102 nations have signed the treaty.

'Bribe Offered For Statement'

... PEERY DENIES KILLING NANCY PARKER

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Ohio Penitentiary inmate Wesley Peery claims he was offered $25,000 to sign a statement that he killed Mrs. Nancy Parker so her husband, Darrell, who is serving a life sentence for the crime, could be freed.

According to Peery, the offer was made by Red Oak, Iowa, investigator, Ralph Peterson.

The statement was made by Peery under oath in a deposition read in Lancaster District Court Tuesday in the opening day of the hearing on a petition filed by Parker's attorneys on a writ of error coram nobis.

New Evidence

In opening statements, attorneys Richard Bruckner and Warren Schrempf, both of Omaha, said that by means of new evidence not available at the time of Parker's trial in the spring of 1956, they would show that "Darrell Parker didn't kill Nancy because she was killed by Peery."

In his deposition taken at Columbus, Ohio, May 29, Peery said he didn't kill Mrs. Parker, didn't know who did, and all he knew about the case was what he had read or been told.

Peery, who was released from the Nebraska Penitentiary in October, 1955, is now serving a 30 to 75-year-term for robbery in Ohio.

"Told Fellow Inmate"

In outlining the case, Bruckner stated that Peery told Charles Sedlacek of Crete, who served time at the Nebraska Penitentiary at the same time as Peery, how he killed Nancy Parker.

Bruckner stated that Peery told Sedlacek, who is expected to testify later this week, that if Sedlacek didn't go his bond, "I'll kill someone else just like I did Nancy Parker."

However, Peery stated in the deposition that he never talked to Sedlacek about the Parker case and had never been to Crete where Sedlacek lives.

Peery said he "strung Mr. Peterson along a little bit" only for "personal gain."

Denies Writing Letter

The 38-year-old Ohio inmate also claims that he did not write a letter, on which his signature appears, admitting the killing of Nancy Parker.

Ohio Penitentiary Capt. J. E. Smith, in another deposition, identified his signature also on the letter and stated that he witnessed Peery's signing the document but did not read all of it.

Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas called the "purported letter" a "forgery."

"Any innuendoes or statements Peery made concerning the crime were to achieve some personal favor to himself," Douglas said.

Wearing Wedding Band

Parker, emotionless, dressed in a dark blue suit and wearing his wedding band, took the stand briefly, but was interrupted by objections by Asst. Atty. Gen. Homer Hamilton that his testimony was hearsay.

Parker had started to relate a conversation he had had with Peery in the exercise yard at the Penitentiary in June, 1956, shortly after Parker's committal.

However, Bruckner and Schrempf, in an attempt to get the conversation into the record, stated:

"If Parker were allowed to testify, he would tell the court that Peery told him if he or his parents would go Peery's bond, Peery would reveal to Parker where the property was that was stolen from the Parker home and the name

Agriculture Backs AFL-CIO 'Right Wing' Attack

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Hastings — Agriculture joined the Nebraska State AFL-CIO assault on "radical right wingers" Tuesday night as a spokesman for the National Farmers Union supplied more ammunition.

Tony T. Dechant of Denver, FU national secretary-treasurer, told banqueting labor conventioners that two major coalitions are common enemies of the farmer and union worker. He identified them as right wing radicals and "the economic coalition based on big business."

"And the big business-professional coalition is as dangerous at the radical right itself," he said. "It is the financial heart of the far right."

The farm official warned that some extremists are "more dangerous than John Birchers themselves" since they employ more subtle tactics. He referred to the wheat referendum failure as an example of sacrifice to "a campaign of hate, destruction and distrust."

Earlier Tuesday, membership lists of the Midwest Employers Council were circulated after convention delegates approved a resolution promising "economic reprisals through consumer boycotts" against contributors to the organization.

The list in circulation included 233 retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers who paid dues ranging from $7.75 to $300 in 1959-60.

One copy of the report was in the hands of Jay Hicks of Bellevue, a delegate of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen No. 28 of Omaha. He said the list was obtained recently from the Bureau of Labor-Management Reports, Kansas City, and had been filed by the Employers Council as required by federal law.

The list, filed May 1, revealed 144 Omaha and 73 Lincoln members. Only outstate businesses shown are two from Norfolk and one each from Kearney and Grand Island.

The report was signed by John E. Tate of Omaha, the Employers Council's executive secretary, and bears a notation that it was signed under protest because it "is unnecessary and beyond any possible intent of the Congress."

Prior to the convention's adoption of the boycott resolution, Del Garst, AFL-CIO Region 15 organization director, told delegates, "We hope to give this man (Tate) all the trouble that human beings can give an individual."

Another AFL-CIO official, Herb Stocker, said Tate has been an instructor in a Colorado Springs Foundation Freedom School "tied to the John Birch Society."

Convention speakers described the Employers Council as "just as fanatical as the John Birch Society." In addition to passage of the boycott resolution, a special fund strike actions against members of the Employers Council. The fund will be derived from local union contributions.

Conservative Democrats Wooped As House Begins Tax Cut Battle

Washington (AP) — Appeals for the crucial votes of conservative Democrats opened the House battle over President Kennedy's $11 billion tax cut bill Tuesday.

In a speech that reached an emotional note seldom heard in tax discussions, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., pleaded with colleagues to make possible a "turning point in economic policy." Voting for the bill, he said, would be pledging faith in private enterprise, rather than government spending, to invigorate and improve the nation's economy.

But almost from the first word, Republicans were bidding for support of their amendment that would make the tax cut depend on budget cutbacks for this year and the next.

To Democrats who are fighting to put the bill through in time for increased take home

pay to start in January, House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana addressed a warning. If the Republican amendment is not accepted, he said, "passage of this bill is in serious jeopardy."

The House fight, expected to end in a showdown vote Wednesday, is only the beginning of the struggle of Kennedy lieutenants — against substantial odds — to get the reduction on the books before Congress goes home this year. Such a timetable is essential if the Jan. 1 goal for reducing withholdings from pay envelopes for income tax is to be reached.

But a jammed schedule in the Senate, soon to be preoccupied with civil rights legislation, makes the outlook doubtful.

The tax bill would put into effect on Jan. 1 two-thirds of the ultimate tax cuts. These would range from about $100 to $200 a year for typical tax-paying families — more in absolute amounts, though not in proportion, for taxpayers in very high brackets.

The remaining tax cut would come later.

Corporation income taxes would be cut, also in two stages, from 52% to 48% and the taxation of capital gains, such as profits on stocks, also would be eased.

Mills, one of the most influential southerners in Congress, put his prestige on the line for the measure. He undertook not only to lead the fight on the floor but to take on much of the indispensable cloakroom persuasion also.

Mills, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, said his opposite number on the Republican side of the committee, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, has "not found an unbreakable magic way" to control spending. Byrnes is author of the Republican amendment.

"No one is going to find an unbreakable magic way," he said, appealing for acceptance of the principle that if taxes are cut additional government spending to stimulate the economy becomes unnecessary.

Conservative Democrats Woored As House Begins Tax Cut Battle

Washington (P) — Appeals for the crucial votes of conservative Democrats opened the House battle over President Kennedy's $11 billion tax cut bill Tuesday.

In a speech that reached an emotional note seldom heard in tax discussions, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., pleaded with colleagues to make possible a "turning point in economic policy." Voting for the bill, he said, would be pledging faith in private enterprise, rather than government spending, to invigorate and improve the nation's economy.

But almost from the first word, Republicans were bidding for support of their amendment that would make the tax cut depend on budget cutbacks for this year and the next.

To Democrats who are fighting to put the bill through in time for increased take home

pay to start in January, House Republican leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana addressed a warning. If the Republican amendment is not accepted, he said, "passage of this bill is in serious jeopardy."

The House fight, expected to end in a showdown vote Wednesday, is only the beginning of the struggle of Kennedy lieutenants — against substantial odds — to get the reduction on the books before Congress goes home this year. Such a timetable is essential if the Jan. 1 goal for reducing withholdings from pay envelopes for income tax is to be reached.

But a jammed schedule in the Senate, soon to be preoccupied with civil rights legislation, makes the outlook doubtful.

The tax bill would put into effect on Jan. 1 two-thirds of the ultimate tax cuts. These would range from about $100 to $200 a year for typical tax-paying families — more in absolute amounts, though not in proportion, for taxpayers in very high brackets.

Farah Jeans and Slacks at Ben Simon's, new shipment, Downtown & Gateway, Boys' and Teen Man Shop.—Adv.

The remaining tax cut would come later.

Corporation income taxes would be cut, also in two stages, from 52% to 48% and the taxation of capital gains, such as profits on stocks, also would be eased.

Mills, one of the most influential southerners in Congress, put his prestige on the line for the measure. He undertook not only to lead the fight on the floor but to take on much of the indispensable cloakroom persuasion also.

Mills, chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, said his opposite number on the Republican side of the committee, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, has "not found an unbreakable magic way" to control spending. Byrnes is author of the Republican amendment.

"No one is going to find an unbreakable magic way," he said, appealing for acceptance of the principle that if taxes are cut additional government spending to stimulate the economy becomes unnecessary.

U.S. Speeds Preparations To Test In Atmosphere

IF RUSSIANS VIOLATE BAN TREATY WE'LL BE READY IN TWO MONTHS

Washington (AP) — Government atomic agencies are rushing preparations for resuming nuclear tests in the atmosphere if the Russians violate the nuclear test ban treaty, informed sources reported Tuesday.

The treaty, barring all but underground testing, was ratified by the Senate, 80 to 19, Tuesday.

The administration's objective is to be ready to conduct some types of tests within about two months after a go-ahead from President Kennedy.

It took about six months to get set for the last U.S. series of atmospheric tests in the Pacific in 1962.

Meanwhile, an accelerated program of underground testing may already have begun.

Atomic Energy Commission officials noted there have been five below-ground tests in a single day since the treaty was signed in August.

Overall, the AEC has announced 105 such tests.

This is in line with the pledge made by President Kennedy and the Defense Department that

PHOTOGRAPHERS' BULBS CATCH RATIFICATION PERFORMANCE

Washington (AP) — In a crowded chamber lit by the alien flash of photographers' bulbs, the Senate followed its script Tuesday and voted to "advise and consent to the ratification" of the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

The performance—a roll call vote of 80 to 19—had a theatrical air but no suspense.

After 67 hours and 38 minutes of debate, all but 2 of the 99 senators on hand had announced how they were going to vote, and announced support gave the treaty 79 votes, well over the two-thirds needed for ratification.

The unannounced votes offset each other. Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., voted for ratification, while Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, said no.

The only other surprise came before the vote, when a photographic flash bulb exploded with a loud bang that sounded like gunshot.

Startled senators looked around, then began chuckling.

The Senate had lifted a ban of its own before it voted to endorse the test ban.

Strict Rule

Its strict rule against picture-taking in the historic chamber was waived briefly so photographers could record the treaty ratification for the U.S. Capitol Historical Society.

A battery of photographers from the National Geographic Society took the pictures, the first authorized chamber shots in recorded Senate history.

Three giant lamps studded with big, blue flash bulbs lit the chamber periodically for posed pictures before the vote, and during the roll call itself.

Rep. Fred Schwengle, R-Iowa, the society president, directed the picture taking from the Senate floor. "As far as we have been able to learn from searching the records," he told newsmen, "this is the first time the Senate has lifted the ban."

Schwengle said somebody apparently sneaked a shot of the Senate in 1935, but it wasn't very good. And more than half a century ago, he said, a photographer took a picture of the chamber using stand-ins for senators and dubbing in the heads of the members later. Schwengle said that didn't make a very good picture, either.

The Iowa congressman said the treaty photographs will be published in a Capitol guidebook issued by the nonprofit society.

Aides Arrive For Viet Nam Survey

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force transport landed President Kennedy's two top military advisers here Tuesday night for a survey that may help shape future Washington policy toward President Ngo Dinh Diem and the war against Vietnamese Communists.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were welcomed by U.S. officials at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport, where a Pan American Boeing 707 had put down a few hours earlier with one engine crippled by guerrilla fire.

Heading the reception party were Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who took up his duties here at the height of South Viet Nam's political-religious crisis last month, and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, chief of the 14,000-strong U.S. armed forces which are supporting and sometimes fighting alongside Vietnamese troops.

Delayed

Lodge boarded the plane as soon as the ramp had been pulled up. Harkins could not get through the crush of newsmen and photographers standing around the bottom of the ramp for several seconds and had to ask loudly: "Gentlemen, do you mind if we get in there to shake hands?"

McNamara told newsmen that he and Taylor had made several trips to South Viet Nam in the last few years. He said the current mission was decided on following consultations between Kennedy and Lodge. He declined comment on the purpose beyond saying he is to report to Kennedy "on the progress of the military situation."

McNamara and Taylor plan to confer with top American officials in Saigon Wednesday and spend the next three days touring the main battlefronts.

The attack on the Pan American plane was among incidents bringing the war home to Saigon. The groundfire came from rice paddies near the airport.

The big jet, inbound from Singapore with 90 passengers, was hit in the No. 3 engine by a 30-caliber bullet at about 1,700 feet on its landing run.

Rusk Gives Indonesia Advice ... WANTS VIOLATIONS ENDED

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk put Indonesian foreign minister on strong notice Tuesday that the United States wants an end to violation of embassies and a return of friendly relations in troubled South Asia.

Foreign Minister Subandrio said Indonesia, too, seeks a peaceful solution. He denied that Indonesia is trying to provoke a break in relations with Britain or intends to nationalize seized British properties.

After a 25-minute session with Rusk, Subandrio planned a prompt departure for Jakarta. Shortly before take-off he was handed a message from British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, the contents of which were not disclosed.

Subandrio acknowledged that tensions are high. Indonesia and the Philippines have refused to recognize the new British-backed state of Malaysia. Indonesia ordered a cutoff in trade with Malaysia. The British Embassy in Jakarta was sacked.

The foreign minister told newsmen after seeing Rusk that "the United States is very much interested in finding a peaceful solution, as we are very much interested too."

It was understood from other sources that Subandrio told Rusk at the outset that, having been at the U.N., he was not familiar with the recent incidents at Jakarta. Rusk therefore did not press Subandrio about details such as the reported Indonesian attempt to rifle secrets from the vault remaining at the British Embassy.

Rusk was said to have told Subandrio in strong terms, however, that:

—The United States is deeply concerned over the rights of diplomatic establishments, which are supposed to have immunity under international law.

—The United States is strongly interested "in a prompt normalization of the situation in the whole area."

Rusk reportedly informed Subandrio that this would be in the best interests of Indonesia as well as of the other nations in the area.

Vietnamese Chief Says Buddhists 'Susceptible'

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam declared Tuesday Buddhists are susceptible to foreign domination, and warned other Asian countries to expect trouble with them.

He described as an "imperialist invention" reports that Buddhists are being suppressed in his country. He said the problem there has been resolved with the freeing of the Buddhist leadership from "the evil influence of foreign agitators and adventurers."

Diem gave his views in a letter to Secretary-General U. Thant, who called the president's attention to Asian-African concern over treatment of Buddhists.

To Be Aired

The issue will be aired in the U.N. General Assembly probably early next month under the general heading of violation of human rights.

Thant, a Buddhist, told a news conference earlier this month he regarded the situation in South Viet Nam as chaotic under a government which followed a policy of force instead of persuasion in its public affairs.

The Problem of World Peace

by J. Gordon Roberts

Some well-meaning people go so far in "interpreting" the Bible that they disregard it as a possible source of literal truth.

In considering the problem of war and peace, I could hardly disregard the Holy Bible, even if I were to disregard entirely any metaphysical meaning, which of course I did not. However, in my study I was interested primarily in seeking out literal truth.

In addition to the Bible I went over legends from different peoples, looking for what was common to different groups. I studied primitive man.

I found that at least some primitive people had the custom of tying up the dead: so as not to be attacked by them. What would account for this?

Genesis uses the apple as the symbol of man's downfall. According to some interpretations, humankind was to be punished for using whatever brains the Lord had provided. But suppose a change of diet were more than a symbol? Suppose that humankind were literally driven from its Garden of Eden through a change in diet.

Dr. W. H. Thompson was heading into Chicago at the time I was in this phase of study. I asked him to determine for me whether or not humankind had ever changed its diet basically, so far as might be determined.

Doctor Thompson checked this question for me at the University of Chicago, to humor me I suspect. Much to his surprise, he discovered that at some time in the past, the ancestor of modern man changed from a purely herbivorous to a carnivorous creature.

In other words, our ancestors switched over from living on nuts, berries and the like as a sole source of food, and added meat. This addition must certainly have included cannibalism, because cannibalism remains in some parts of the world.

Such a change would account for tying up the dead; for man's fear of himself, for built-in guilt.

Basically, the answer is all there within a few lines of Genesis.

According to anthropologists, with the decline of vegetation, humankind turned to meat to supplement its diet, probably of course with the grisly concomitant of cannibalism. Probably this development came with the Ice Age.

According to authorities at the University of Chicago, there could be no question about the change in diet, even though the matter of time could be subject to debate.

If so, human nature has changed in the past to meet the circumstances of environment, and may change again.

maintain our own arsenal through underground testing and our readiness to resume atmospheric testing if the actions of others so require."

In addition to such preparations, the Atomic Energy Commission and the Pentagon's defense atomic support agency have taken steps to improve methods of detecting any sneak atmospheric, underwater or in-space tests.

Programs

And programs are under way to improve and maintain the vitality of the important laboratories where new weapons concepts are devised.

Much of the test preparation work is being performed by Joint Task Force 8, which handled testing operations at Johnston and Christmas islands in the Pacific in 1962. It is being enlarged from a standby nucleus.

It is the position of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Dr. Harold Brown, the Pentagon's research and engineering director, that the United States will not fall behind in the drive to develop an effective antimissile system, if nuclear testing is restricted to underground blasts.

He took the action after the student judicial council recommended expulsion of the 21-year-old law student. McDowell, accompanied by his attorney and another representative, had appeared before the Council Tuesday.

Hike In Farm Land Prices Causes Alarm

Washington (AP)—Rising prices of farm land are causing increasing concern among federal farm officials.

Prices already have reached levels in many areas where it is virtually impossible for a newcomer to agriculture to buy land and come out with any income. Farm land values in July were at a record high and averaged 6% above last year and 27% above the 1957-59 average.

Typical of what officials are saying are remarks made by Don H. Bushnell, deputy governor of the Farm Credit Administration, in a talk at a meeting of presidents of the nation's 12 Federal Land Banks at San Francisco Tuesday.

The Farm Credit official said prices have advanced to a point where the rate of return on the price asked for most farms, after deducting living costs of the owner-operator, is less than a borrower would have to pay on a farm mortgage loan.

The situation is being aggravated, he said, by rising real estate taxes.

The Federal Land Banks, which are supervised by the government and owned by farmers, are carrying $3.2 billion in farm mortgage loans, or about 20% of those outstanding in the nation.

"Most observers," Bushnell said "are inclined to blame 'outside influences' for bidding up the price of farm land. Buying of land for highways, suburban housing and industrial development and by investors as a hedge against inflation were said to be factors contributing to the continuing increase in land values."

He said some farmers continue to buy land despite the high prices.

"They are buying land to add to existing holdings—in an effort to utilize their machinery and have a more economic, efficient operating unit. Having purchased their base units when farm prices were not inflated, they figure they can 'average out' their investment and still get a fair return on enlarged units."

"The greatest loser from inflation in sales prices," the official said, "is the young fellow trying to break into farming. The young man who wishes to buy a farm on today's market by making a small down payment, much as his city cousin does in purchasing a home, is out of luck. Even if he finds a lender who will finance him on that basis, the odds on his being able to carry his debt from farm earnings are stacked against him."

Zuspan Renamed By Osteopaths

Grand Island (AP)—Dr. Newell A. Zuspan of Grand Island has been re-elected president of the Nebraska Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons.

His election took place at the annual meeting of the association which elected Dr. C. Eugene Brown of Nebraska City as president-elect; Dr. Earl A. Purzner of Scottsbluff as secretary-treasurer, and Dr. Bruce L. Ross of Central City as a member of the board.

Fort Kearny Trust Dissolved

Harold Warp of Chicago has announced that the Fort Kearny trust he established in 1945 for the purpose of rebuilding old Fort Kearny has served its purpose and is being dissolved. The $19,254 remaining in the trust is being transferred to the state of Nebraska's Fort Kearny preservation committee for continued rebuilding work. Presentation of the check to the committee members was held at Fort Kearny. Left to right are: Warp; Mrs. Lucile Cole and J. R. McBride, both of Minden, committee members; and Ted Stulheit, curator.

German Research Expert To Speak

Prof. G. Kroneberg, research director of Germany's largest pharmacological laboratory, arrived Monday for a brief visit to the University of Nebraska College of Pharmacy, where he will address a public meeting Wednesday. Prof. Kroneberg, who has done extensive research in circulation, will speak on "The Pharmacology of Hypotensive Agents" at an 11 a.m. meeting at Lyman Hall.

Freeman Plans 2 Nebraska Stops

Two stops in Nebraska have been scheduled for Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman on his visit to the state October 9, according to Hans O. Jensen, chairman of the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) committee. The first stop will be at North Platte at 10 a.m., where Freeman has invited farmers and ranchers to meet with him at the Junior High School Auditorium in one of his "Report and Review" meetings that he has scheduled to secure the farmer and rancher viewpoint in 11 states.

"We encourage the general public to make this meeting as it will be the farmer and rancher that Freeman wants to visit with," said Jensen. The second stop will be made at Grand Island, at 2 p.m., where Freeman will address the state meeting of ASCS employees at the Capitol Theater.

A previous planned visit to Scottsbluff has been transferred to Grand Island to coincide with the state ASCS meeting, Jensen said.

A suitcase like one missing from the Parker home was also introduced Tuesday as a new piece of evidence in the case.

"Similar" to Daughter's Depositions from Mrs. Parker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison Jr. of Des Moines, related that Peterson had brought a suitcase he had located to their home for identification in December, 1959.

Mrs. Morrison described it as "similar" to and possibly the one which her daughter had owned but which apparently was missing after the slaying.

Nancy Parker, 22, was found strangled on Dec. 14, 1955, in the Antelope Park cottage bedroom where the Parkers resided.

Signed Statement Parker, Lincoln city forester at the time, signed a statement, about a week after the slaying, saying that he had killed his wife when she resisted his advances after breakfast.

Bruckner told the court Tuesday that the statement had "no more validity than the brainwashed statements of GI's."

Among those attending the hearing before Lancaster District Judge John L. Polk are Parker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Parker of Henderson, Iowa, some three dozen persons from Parker's home church and former pastor, the Rev. Peter Trucano.

Lad Addict To Lighter Fluid

Omaha (UPI)—A 10-year-old fourth grader Tuesday told police a sorrowful story of how he has become addicted to the habit of sniffing lighter fluid.

The youngster had been arrested earlier for shoplifting. It was the second time in the past five days he has been in trouble because of the habit.

"It keeps on getting in my mind," he told officers. "I can't forget about it. I try but I can't."

Only last Thursday the youth and a 12-year-old companion were arrested after they smashed windows in a downtown Omaha store. The two told authorities at that time they had been sniffing the lighter fluid since 5 p.m. the previous day.

Tuesday the 10-year-old told authorities he has been sniffing the fluid for about a month and that his older companion has been on the habit for about three months. He said he learned the habit from an older brother.

"It gets us kind of goofy," the youth said. "We just kind of fall down. We get up and then we fall down again."

He said he had been sniffing the fluid before being picked up on the shoplifting charge.

Old Scorpion Found

Lund, Sweden (AP)—A young geologist found a fossilized scorpion estimated to be 400 million years old in a road excavation near Lund, the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said.

$2.51 Hog Price Sets New Record

Omaha (AP)—The grand champion market hog sold for $2.51 a pound, a new record, at the Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show.

The animal was bought by the Nixon Feed Co. of Omaha and brought $599.95 to Courtney Johnson, 12, of Millard. The grand champion lamb sold for $1.70 a pound to Bakkers Super Markets of Omaha. The animal was exhibited by Norman Riesenbaw, 16, of Cordova.

In Tuesday's competition, Barbara Birch of Pierce showed the first place heavy-weight Hereford heifer, and Kathy Ahrendsen of Audubon, Iowa, had the top lightweight Hereford heifer.

Second place heifers in the two divisions were exhibited

Washington (AP)—Rising prices of farm land are causing increasing concern among federal farm officials.

Prices already have reached levels in many areas where it is virtually impossible for a newcomer to agriculture to buy land and come out with any income. Farm land values in July were at a record high and averaged 6% above last year and 27% above the 1957-59 average.

Typical of what officials are saying are remarks made by Don H. Bushnell, deputy governor of the Farm Credit Administration, in a talk at a meeting of presidents of the nation's 12 Federal Land Banks at San Francisco Tuesday.

The Farm Credit official said prices have advanced to a point where the rate of return on the price asked for most farms, after deducting living costs of the owner-operator, is less than a borrower would have to pay on a farm mortgage loan.

The situation is being aggravated, he said, by rising real estate taxes.

The Federal Land Banks, which are supervised by the government and owned by farmers, are carrying $3.2 billion in farm mortgage loans, or about 20% of those outstanding in the nation.

"Most observers," Bushnell said "are inclined to blame 'outside influences' for bidding up the price of farm land. Buying of land for highways, suburban housing and industrial development and by investors as a hedge against inflation were said to be factors contributing to the continuing increase in land values."

He said some farmers continue to buy land despite the high prices.

"They are buying land to add to existing holdings—in an effort to utilize their machinery and have a more economic, efficient operating unit. Having purchased their base units when farm prices were not inflated, they figure they can 'average out' their investment and still get a fair return on enlarged units."

"The greatest loser from inflation in sales prices," the official said, "is the young fellow trying to break into farming. The young man who wishes to buy a farm on today's market by making a small down payment, much as his city cousin does in purchasing a home, is out of luck. Even if he finds a lender who will finance him on that basis, the odds on his being able to carry his debt from farm earnings are stacked against him."

Zuspan Renamed By Osteopaths

Grand Island (AP)—Dr. Newell A. Zuspan of Grand Island has been re-elected president of the Nebraska Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons.

His election took place at the annual meeting of the association which elected Dr. C. Eugene Brown of Nebraska City as president-elect; Dr. Earl A. Pultzer of Scottsbluff as secretary-treasurer, and Dr. Bruce L. Ross of Central City as a member of the board.

A Nation Of Experts

By WILLIAM O. DOHLER

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy in a New York address has called for a greater exchange of ideas among specialists. He spoke at a meeting of the Italian Congress of Forensic Medicine as the group held its first meeting in this country. Some 430 Italian doctors and lawyers plus 500 other guests were in attendance. The organization is devoted to an exchange of ideas between the various arts and professions.

"If the goals of our age are ever to become less confused — as clearly they must if our civilization is to survive — I believe that achievement will come about through discussions like yours," Kennedy told the congress. He stated that this nation has concentrated on the expert technique at the expense of general learning. There isn't any doubt that there are a great many experts in this land of ours. This is discovered quickly by those who hazard opinions on developments of the times. Not everyone knows something about everything but there is always someone who knows one single subject inside and out.

This emphasis on the specialist has two disadvantages. For one, it often makes the specialist rather intolerant of others when they attempt any kind of invasion of his field. Secondly, it tends to limit the specialist down to one narrow field of vision. Something of this is found in the Defense Department today where criticism has been aimed at civilian experts.

These are experts in the fields of history, armament, economics, administration, etc., but they are not what one might call well-rounded. According to some military figures, these civilians lack a practical understanding of how to deal with other nations in the international arena.

And the problem really goes much deeper than that. It goes, in fact, to the very roots of much of the controversy that we find today. It is not always a question of experts, but it is often a question of narrow or limited knowledge. Whether an individual is an expert at anything or not, he can be sadly lacking in this understanding of many things. It would behoove people to give some thought to this before they jump headlong into an issue and make up their minds on the basis of rumor or prejudice. How many Americans today, for instance, have taken the time to actually try to figure out what the ultimate end will be in the cold war with communism? It is not until people come to some understanding of this end that they can begin to judge intelligently that which takes place in the nation's day-to-day dealings with Russia. Nor is the situation confined to the field of public affairs. How many times have parents been advised that they should make a greater effort to understand their children? The advice is often given but there are many parents who still ignore it and proceed only on the basis of their authority over their children. When the authority runs out, the child could go in almost any direction and the befuddled parent is left wondering what he did wrong.

Thus, the problem of the specialist is a problem with all kinds of people. It is the tendency of men and women to proceed in a kind of twilight of knowledge that often leaves them in deep water. How can we hope that the educator will ever understand the parent or vice versa, that labor and management will ever find a common ground or that nations will ever exist in true peace so long as an effort at greater understanding is not made?

The laboring man has a tendency to look down at the farmer as the cause of the high price of food, despite the fact that the farmer gets far less than anyone else out of most of the food that finds its way to the dinner tables of American families. The farmer, too, is not incapable of looking at the laboring man as the cause for the high price of farm machinery.

Metropolitan areas issue wholesale indictments of rural areas and rural areas look with skepticism at the urban areas. The doctor figures legal fees are too high and the lawyer thinks that medical costs are prohibitive. The conservative thinks a liberal is a communist and the liberal believes the conservative to be a reactionary. We will never arrive at the point of complete unanimity and we would never want to. Certainly, we need to have individuality and many differences of opinion but this kind of controversy will be constructive only insofar as it is founded in careful thought and broad knowledge.

Young people today should be impressed not just with the need for ingenuity as they go out into the world but with the need, as well, for wide learning. They will contribute to the world about them according to the variety as well as depth of their understanding of people and events.

Special Credit To Test Ban Leaders

WASHINGTON — A lot of people were responsible for putting across what President Kennedy called "new rays of hope" up the steep and difficult path toward comprehensive disarmament — namely, the test ban treaty. But here are some who deserve special credit.

John McCone, head of Central Intelligence, who gave convincing testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee from the vantage point of having been chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, under secretary of the Air Force, and now head of CIA.

Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, R-Ill., the minority leader who passed up partisan politics with a statesmanlike speech urging Republicans to support the treaty.

Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., who early in the debate gave one of the most impassioned and effective pleas for ratification. As a member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and as one not given to sentiment, the little Italian-American opened his coat, clutched at his heart and said:

"I say to those who have doubts about the treaty that I want them to open their hearts and look into their consciences. I want them to realize what they may be doing. If by their vote they destroy and kill the treaty, God help us. God help us."

Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, whose guidance and wisdom were so important in steering the treaty through both his committee and the Senate.

BOB CONSIDINE

Japan A Rapidly Growing Power

TOKYO — Just about this time 18 years ago General Douglas MacArthur set up shop in the Dai Ichi building, victorious master of all he surveyed in a battered and dazed land which had recently surrendered unconditionally.

Today Japan, risen from its radioactive ashes, is the fourth ranking steel-producing nation, third biggest producer of cotton yarn, second biggest in chemical fibers, and number one in shipbuilding. Its exports are three times the average of other nations. Its economic growth easily outstrips that of the United States and other powers which helped to crush it.

Japan speaks softly and carries a big surplus. It is quietly exerting a tremendous influence throughout the Asian world. Once it vainly felt it could impose its will by force and tried to make its imperialism palatable with the handy slogan, "Asia For The Asians." Now it advances behind the shield of economics and its own version of America's Point Four plan. A lot of its reparations payments have been in the form of technical aid to less-developed countries in this part of the world. It has been a friend-making process and one that is now darkly regarded by Red China and the Soviet Union, both of whom have their own designs on Asian lands and minds.

No nation eyes Japan more intently than the United States, whose taxpayers bore and to a lesser degree still bear the burden of financing its incredible comeback.

Kefauver Will Be Remembered

WASHINGTON — The waters of oblivion have a disconcerting way in this capital of rolling over the reputation of a departed officeholder almost before the eulogies have ceased. But Estes Kefauver of Tennessee promises to be an exception to this unhappy rule if only because he stood for certain deeply held beliefs above and beyond the erosion of easy compromise.

Whether his last big drive — to investigate the power of American drug manufacturers to enforce high if not prohibitive prices for wonder drugs in Latin America — will be scuttled is the question of today. With his old opponents closing in, the prospects are not bright.

Kefauver had an old-fashioned belief in competition. He was for free enterprise — free and competitive enterprise. A close friend in the Senate once asked him to join in sponsoring a "price notification" bill requiring firms in basic manufactures to serve advance notice of upcoming price increases along with a justification for the boost. Kefauver declined, saying this sounded too much like government regulation to him.

The senator from Tennessee with the coonskin cap and the limp handshake has a monument in the greatly strengthened drug bill that followed the thalidomide scandal and in an anti-merger law putting more teeth into the anti-trust statutes. But his real achievement was in the massive record built up beginning in 1957 on his investigation of "administrative prices" in bread, autos, steel and other areas in the economy where monopoly or monopoly understandings keep price tags high.

Proposing to investigate the prices of American drugs in the Latin-American market, Kefauver ran into a buzz saw. His associates believe his experience so shocked and saddened him that it contributed to his fatal heart attack.

McKesson & Robbins, the nation's leading drug wholesaler, went into Colombia and began selling antibiotics and other drugs under their generic rather than their brand names. This meant a saving many times over to the consumer. But the big American pharmaceutical houses were outraged and McKesson charged them with cutting off supplies.

When Kefauver proposed to investigate they turned the heat on friendly senators. Kefauver's anti-monopoly subcommittee was blocked by the full Justice Committee. This was a matter for the State Department or the Department of Justice. The hot potato bounced from hand to hand as Kefauver looked on with a growing sense of helplessness.

Finally Kefauver was granted a hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to consider the repercussions in Latin America of the proposed investigation. To the hearing came Thomas G. (Tommy the Cork of the New Deal) Corcoran, representing his brother, David, president of Sterling Products, a drug company with a large operation in Latin America. Corcoran's law partner, Edward H. Foley, represents the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association.

Corcoran made a forceful, not to say fierce, presentation. He told the committee that even the proposal of an investigation had been blown up in sensational newspapers in Brazil and elsewhere to show that American drug firms were guilty of trying to extort criminally high prices. This would be used by political demagogues to justify confiscation of the American drug business and that, Corcoran warned, would be another blow to foreign aid in Congress.

Sen. Wayne Morse, chairman of the Latin-American subcommittee, sided with Corcoran. Kefauver felt that his allies of the past had deserted him. In the face of Corcoran's warning it was agreed that if anything was done it should be by the Department of Justice inquiring into possible violation of the law in this country. In an administration showing little interest in anti-trust, in marked contrast to the Eisenhower administration, this seemed to Kefauver a brush-off.

The other day Sen. Phillip Hart of Michigan, who succeeded to the chairmanship of the Anti-Monopoly Committee, got a vote of all eight members approving a resolution keeping in force the subpoenas issued for records of the big drug houses. Hart feels strongly about the Kefauver goals of checkmating monopoly pressure so that business can be free to produce to the fullest. But when the real showdown comes on whether to investigate or not the chances are that he will have only two votes — his own and that of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut.

A melancholy footnote to the Kefauver career is that he left an estate of $20,000. Friends and admirers are trying to raise a fund to help educate the four Kefauver children. Honestly, as Lincoln said, may be the best policy. But in an era when money values are supreme it can impose heavy penalties.

Facing Prejudice

Plattsburgh, Neb.

Four little innocent girls were killed because of hate and prejudice. Prejudice, the greatest disease that affects our human society today, is like a cancerous growth that reaches out and hurts whatever it touches.

Is it fair or just to prejudice a person just because of the color of his skin or the country he comes from or the way he honestly tries to worship God? Let us all try to develop a viewpoint that embraces all human beings — one that gets down to the basic dignity of every human being. God created one human race, not many, and made us from the beginning one human family. He is not prejudiced nor did He intend us to be.

We know that the opposite of hate is love. That is the simple, straightforward command that Christ gave us "Love one another as I have loved you." It cuts down the barriers that separate us one from another. It pierces through the hard shell of race hatred that plagues our world. If there is any segregation in God's plan, it will take place only at the last judgment, when the good are separated from the wicked.

Those of us who are sitting quietly on the sidelines and watching this struggle and doing nothing are equally to blame for these outrageous acts of violence. This battle that is tearing our country apart will leave us all the losers if this issue goes unresolved.

Let us stop giving only lip service to God and our country and do something to resolve this issue by starting with legislation. We should insist that our congressmen support our President's civil rights bill. Then we should get down on our knees in prayer and ask God to give us the light and sincerity to face our prejudices.

School Buses
Sutton, Neb.

There's something Senator Foster should look into at the special session. Many parochial school children are walking because they can't ride our school buses. The Catholic families' taxes help to build the roads and buy the buses, so why can't the youngsters ride? A parochial school is approved by the state and the Supreme Court says the parent has the right to choose it for his child.

In Jefferson's time, the government gave the states two sections of land in each township — 16 and 36 — to keep up their schools. The state was to see that the income from this school land was divided fairly so that each child of school age drew an equal share for his school. But the share of the parochial school pupils doesn't go to their school. Thus, Catholic families are keeping up two schools.

Some have said to let them close their schools and attend public schools. Have we thought what this would do to our taxes — all the schools that would have to be built and equipped, besides teachers, buses, drivers, books, etc.? The smart thing might be to make it a littler easier on them.

A Nation Of Experts

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy in a New York address has called for a greater exchange of ideas among specialists. He spoke at a meeting of the Italian Congress of Forensic Medicine as the group held its first meeting in this country. Some 430 Italian doctors and lawyers plus 500 other guests were in attendance. The organization is devoted to an exchange of ideas between the various arts and professions.

"If the goals of our age are ever to become less confused — as clearly they must if our civilization is to survive — I believe that achievement will come about through discussions like yours," Kennedy told the congress. He stated that this nation has concentrated on the expert technique at the expense of general learning. There isn't any doubt that there are a great many experts in this land of ours. This is discovered quickly by those who hazard opinions on developments of the times. Not everyone knows something about everything but there is always someone who knows one single subject inside and out.

This emphasis on the specialist has two disadvantages. For one, it often makes the specialist rather intolerant of others when they attempt any kind of invasion of his field. Secondly, it tends to limit the specialist down to one narrow field of vision. Something of this is found in the Defense Department today where criticism has been aimed at civilian experts.

These are experts in the fields of history, armament, economics, administration, etc., but they are not what one might call well-rounded. According to some military figures, these civilians lack a practical understanding of how to deal with other nations in the international arena.

And the problem really goes much deeper than that. It goes, in fact, to the very roots of much of the controversy that we find today. It is not always a question of experts, but it is often a question of narrow or limited knowledge. Whether an individual is an expert at anything or not, he can be sadly lacking in this understanding of many things. It would behoove people to give some thought to this before they jump headlong into an issue and make up their minds on the basis of rumor or prejudice. How many Americans today, for instance, have taken the time to actually try to figure out what the ultimate end will be in the cold war with communism?

It is not until people come to some understanding of this end that they can begin to judge intelligently that which takes place in the nation's day-to-day dealings with Russia. Nor is the situation confined to the field of public affairs. How many times have parents been advised that they should make a greater effort to understand their children? The advice is often given but there are many parents who still ignore it and proceed only on the basis of their authority over their children. When the authority runs out, the child could go in almost any direction and the befuddled parent is left wondering what he did wrong.

Thus, the problem of the specialist is a problem with all kinds of people. It is the tendency of men and women to proceed in a kind of twilight of knowledge that often leaves them in deep water. How can we hope that the educator will ever understand the parent or vice versa, that labor and management will ever find a common ground or that nations will ever exist in true peace so long as an effort at greater understanding is not made?

The laboring man has a tendency to look down at the farmer as the cause of the high price of food, despite the fact that the farmer gets far less than anyone else out of most of the food that finds its way to the dinner tables of American families. The farmer, too, is not incapable of looking at the laboring man as the cause for the high price of farm machinery.

Metropolitan areas issue wholesale indictments of rural areas and rural areas look with skepticism at the urban areas.

The doctor figures legal fees are too high and the lawyer thinks that medical costs are prohibitive. The conservative thinks a liberal is a communist and the liberal believes the conservative to be a reactionary. We will never arrive at the point of complete unanimity and we would never want to. Certainly, we need to have individuality and many differences of opinion but this kind of controversy will be constructive insofar as it is founded in careful thought and broad knowledge.

Young people today should be impressed not just with the need for ingenuity as they go out into the world but with the need, as well, for wide learning. They will contribute to the world about them according to the variety as well as depth of their understanding of people and events.

Growing Trail Enthusiasm

Support for a modern replay of the Lewis and Clark expedition seems to be spontaneous and unanimous not only on the part of the 10 states involved, but the rest of the nation as well.

A good deal of water has gone under the bridge since the wish for such a thing was uttered by the late J. N. Darling, Iowa cartoonist and national conservation figure. There has been a congressional resolution favoring the event. The trail states have all given it enthusiastic endorsement. The Federal Bureau of Recreation has asked for a hand in the game. Nebraska's Governor Frank Morrison has called a conference of the 10 governors at Camp Ashland, November 19, for further planning. Secretary of Interior Stewart intends to take part. It looks as though a major event is under way. Target date for the end of planning has been set for July 1, 1964.

Nebraska has a dual interest. It contains an important segment of the trail. The program developments will coincide with this state's observance of its centennial.

No western event is more fitting for a memorial replay. Captains Merriwether Lewis and William Clark were commissioned to find a trail from St. Louis, Mo., to the Pacific Ocean, traversing the region acquired by the Louisiana Purchase in 1803. Their party left St. Louis in 1804, moved up the Missouri river finally going overland across the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Other states visited enroute were Kansas and Iowa. The explorers succeeded both in blazing the trail and gathering a mass of vital information. Their exploration lasted two years.

The Lewis and Clark expedition led the way for the western mass migration which opened the way to American greatness.

The forthcoming observance will be one of multiple activities. A trail blazing group will follow the old trail. It will be preserved historically by full marking. Following the trail blazers will be a motorized caravan of historical exhibits available for local observances enroute. Also in the making is a new western highway following the old trail as closely as practical.

Goldwater And Dirksen

Senator Barry Goldwater didn't have many allies when he sought to hang a Cuban deal on the test ban pact. He would have made acceptance conditional on Russia's removal of all men and materiel from Cuba. His proposal was defeated by 75 to 17.

We presume that Sen. Goldwater consulted his conscience and on that assumption he is to be admired for his integrity. The courage to hold an unpopular position is a qualification for statesmanship.

In contrast Sen. Republican Leader Dirksen, Ill., rose above political partisanship and led a number of Republicans away from Goldwater in behalf of the treaty. And that capacity for subordinating political concerns to the general interest is also of statesmanlike quality.

Many will believe Sen. Goldwater was dead wrong. The evidence of history can be construed against him. No peaceful condition can be successfully cultured in the soil of total belligerence, and the rejection even of experimental moves toward peaceful solutions amounts to the selection of a war climate as the only course to pursue. It would be a bad day for the world if United States policy could move only in the direction of calamity.

Because of this some are giving Sen. Dirksen a higher mark for statesmanship than Goldwater. But there are other factors to be considered. Sen. Dirksen is not in line for any higher office than he now holds. His health, his age and his position in the party does not put upon him the hard position of a man who, though he may not aspire, still is considered by many as a candidate for the presidency.

The two men acted under different pressures and different circumstances. So what is more important here is that the treaty was solidly confirmed in the Senate Tuesday.

President Hits The Trail

President Kennedy has started an 11-state tour of conservation and reclamation projects, aiming to bolster the nation's consciousness of its natural resources. In the President's mind are both long and short-range goals. On the short pull he would hope to improve chances for passage of the wilderness bill now tied up in Congress.

The objective of this measure is to expand the acreage under federal ownership that is to be forever held in its natural state. This would mean the elimination of any mining or other commercial exploitation of the land such as cutting of wood, etc. Thus, it is easy to see the point of controversy over the proposal.

While the population of the nation explodes and the demand for recreational areas increases, there is also a need for business and industry. Unfortunately, when it comes to the nation's wilderness areas, the two things are in drastic conflict. If this conflict is not resolved in behalf of the people of the United States, the loss sustained will be one that could never be regained.

There is no going back and returning an area to its natural state. There are programs of conservation but once an area's natural environment has been disrupted, it is gone forever. In his tour of 11 states, the President will be trying to muster support for the wilderness bill and for the cause of conservation and reclamation in general. His objective is one that needs and should definitely have the support of the people of Nebraska. It is not a matter of free enterprise, but a matter of protecting those national assets that belong to all the citizens.

Special Credit To Test Ban Leaders

WASHINGTON — A lot of people were responsible for putting across what President Kennedy called "new rays of hope" up the steep and difficult path toward comprehensive disarmament — namely, the test ban treaty. But here are some who deserve special credit:

John McCone, head of Central Intelligence, who gave convincing testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee from the vantage point of having been chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, under secretary of the Air Force, and now head of CIA.

Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen, R-Ill., the minority leader who passed up partisan politics with a statesmanlike speech urging Republicans to support the treaty.

Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., who early in the debate gave one of the most impassioned and effective pleas for ratification. As a member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and as one not given to sentiment, the little Italo-American opened his coat, clutched at his heart and said:

"I say to those who have doubts about the treaty that I want them to open their hearts and look into their consciences. I want them to realize what they may be doing. If by their vote they destroy and kill the treaty, God help us, God help us."

Sen. William Fulbright, D-

Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, whose guidance and wisdom were so important in steering the treaty through both his committee and the Senate.

The man who tried the hardest to defeat the test ban treaty, and for a time seemed to be making the most headway, was Dr. Edward Teller, the Hungarian-born scientist who has won the name of "Father Of The H-bomb."

Dr. Teller came to Washington in advance of the treaty debate to have breakfast with congressmen and argue against the treaty. He came to Washington during the treaty debate to dine privately with Sen. Russell Long, D-La., whom he converted, and to lunch publicly at the National Press Club where his dictatorial manner in dealing with TV operators did not win him converts.

The defeat of the test ban treaty became a personal crusade for Dr. Teller. He has considered the H-bomb, of which he is supposed to be the father, a weapon of liberation, freedom and justice. He disagrees violently with Leo Szilard, Robert Oppenheimer and other scientists who feel a certain guilt about having brought such terrible weapons of destruction into the world. To Teller, the test ban treaty amounts to a black mark against his weapon, a recognition of the anti-social nature of the bomb.

Japan A Rapidly Growing Power

TOKYO—Just about this time 18 years ago General Douglas MacArthur set up shop in the Dai Ichi building, victorious master of all he surveyed in a battered and dazed land which had recently surrendered unconditionally.

Today Japan, risen from its radioactive ashes, is the fourth ranking steel-producing nation, third biggest producer of cotton yarn, second biggest in chemical fibers, and number one in shipbuilding. Its exports are three times the average of other nations. Its economic growth easily outstrips that of the United States and other powers which helped to crush it.

Japan speaks softly and carries a big surplus.

It is quietly exerting a tremendous influence throughout the Asian world. Once it vainly felt it could impose its will by force and tried to make its imperialism palatable with the handy slogan, "Asia For The Asians." Now it advances behind the shield of economics and its own version of America's Point Four plan. A lot of its reparations payments have been in the form of technical aid to less-developed countries in this part of the world. It has been a friend-making process and one that is now darkly regarded by Red China and the Soviet Union, both of whom have their own designs on Asian lands and minds.

No nation eyes Japan more intently than the United States, whose taxpayers bore and to a lesser degree still bear the burden of financing its incredible comeback.

Rail Arbitrators Urged To Ignore Old Offers

Washington (AP) — The railroads said Tuesday they haven't been able to agree with the unions on a single point in their 4½-year-old work rules dispute. The carriers urged arbitrators to disregard past railroad settlement offers.

However, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz indicated both sides were close to agreement in early August, with one of two key issues all but settled before negotiations broke down and threatened a nationwide rail strike.

Wirtz's comments came in a report to a seven-man arbitration board outlining his unsuccessful efforts to settle the controversy.

The board, headed by arbitrator Ralph T. Seward, was directed by Congress to decide the two key issues in the dispute — whether 32,000 firemen should be laid off on freight and yard trains and whether the size of freight train crews can safely be cut.

Must Be Accepted

The board's findings on these two points must be accepted by both sides, under terms of the emergency legislation.

Howard Neltzert, chief railroad counsel, made the first formal presentation before the board. Attorneys for the five operating unions will begin their presentation Wednesday morning.

Meanwhile, bargaining sessions began Tuesday afternoon between the railroads and the five on-train unions on seven subsidiary issues exempted from binding arbitration.

Unless these side issues are settled, the threat of a strike could be renewed next spring.

Neltzert said the railroads had accepted the recommendations of a presidential commission and a presidential emergency board because of a desire for a prompt and peaceful settlement, even though they "were deeply disappointed with many of the recommendations."

All Rejected

If the railroads had thought such settlement offers "might bar a full and impartial consideration and determination of their right" by the arbitration board, he said, they "would never have made the settlement offers." All were rejected by the unions.

"Are you suggesting that we ignore such offers?" asked Seward.

Neltzert said he was.

"How we can fulfill our responsibility to the public to try to reach a quick settlement and ignore such offers is a question," Seward said.

Neltzert said that if such settlement proposals were to serve as a "floor" under the settlement by arbitration, a minimum level of settlement, then "few, if any, settlement offers will be made, either in railway negotiations or in any other field."

The railroad attorney contended that money which could be used to take advantage of technological developments was being wasted by inefficient use of labor.

The railroads contend that $600 million a year is wasted by outdated work rules.

Neltzert noted that the emergency legislation rushed through last month to head off a nationwide strike directed the board to incorporate in its decision "any matters on which it finds the parties were in agreement."

"As far as I know," he said, "there were no such matters."

However, in a summary presentation to the board giving the background of mediation efforts, Wirtz said there was considerable agreement by both sides on his proposal of Aug. 2.

He added that this agreement was contingent upon a settlement on all major issues, and negotiations collapsed before final agreement came.

Wirtz said both sides had agreed to a review of the size of crews on yard jobs and branch line jobs, but disagreed on review of secondary main lines. He said this disagreement was partially due to failure to agree on a definition of "secondary main line" jobs.

Also, Wirtz said, the unions refused to accept binding arbitration as provided by the presidential emergency board to determine which jobs or classes of jobs should be eliminated.

Brandt Claims Every Community Can Improve

"Nearly every community, regardless of size, can improve itself if it sincerely wants to," state Senator William Brandt of Unadilla challenged here Tuesday.

Brandt, reporting to the State Rural Areas Development Committee on findings of the Legislature's Small Community Problems Study committee which he heads, pointed out that "everyone in the state is a member of some community."

He called on leaders from organizations over the state—rural and urban—to discard the traditional idea that the community coincides with municipality boundary lines.

Brandt said the committee learned that there are 500 formalized communities in the state. "Think of the impact on the economy of the state if the economy of these communities were increased by 5%," the Unadilla legislator analyzed tangible improvements through individual community development, when multiplied hundreds of times, "improve the profile of the entire state," he stressed.

Commenting on the widely varying size of communities as recognized by current concepts in community improvement, he said some communities may include several organized towns or settlements.

"But we have seen characteristics of prosperity in a community with a population of 40 persons," he added.

"We're not going to save every community in Nebraska, but we need to tie down factors that keep other communities alive," he stated.

The senator from District 2 in southeastern Nebraska warned chairman Paul Ogler of Wallace and others attending that "you cannot legislate leadership," but said some legislative aids still could be enacted in such areas as education and planning to aid in total community development.

Emel Christensen, representing the University of Nebraska Community Services Division and the State Division of Resources, said one of the universal problems of small communities is lack of adequate housing facilities for teachers. "You need decent housing to attract the type of teachers who can provide the type of education which will open up opportunities for keeping young people in the community," he reasoned.

Elton Berck, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union and a member of the State Committee, said "the role of the state committee is not to go in and do a job for a community, but to help provide the climate and inspiration for a community to work on its problems."

Rail Arbitrators Urged To Ignore Old Offers

Washington (AP) — The railroads said Tuesday they haven't been able to agree with the unions on a single point in their 4½-year-old work rules dispute. The carriers urged arbitrators to disregard past railroad settlement offers.

However, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz indicated both sides were close to agreement in early August, with one of two key issues all but settled before negotiations broke down and threatened a nationwide rail strike.

Wirtz' comments came in a report to a seven-man arbitration board outlining his unsuccessful efforts to settle the controversy.

The board, headed by arbitrator Ralph T. Seward, was directed by Congress to decide the two key issues in the dispute — whether 32,000 firemen should be laid off on freight and yard trains and whether the size of freight train crews can safely be cut. Must Be Accepted

The board's findings on these two points must be accepted by both sides, under terms of the emergency legislation.

Howard Neitzert, chief railroad counsel, made the first formal presentation before the board. Attorneys for the five operating unions will begin their presentation Wednesday morning.

If the railroads had thought such settlement offers "might bar a full and impartial consideration and determination of their right" by the arbitration board, he said, they "would never have made the settlement offers." All were rejected by the unions.

"Are you suggesting that we ignore such offers?" asked Seward.

Power Cost Change Proposed

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A Michigan consulting engineer Tuesday night recommended a change in Nebraska Public Power System cost allocations which would result in a rate reduction for Consumers Public Power District and increases for rural power districts and municipal utilities.

Over the three-year life of the present NPPS contracts, the rate reduction for CPPD would amount to $391,290.

Rate increases for other NPPS customers, chiefly rural districts and municipal utilities, would total $460,221.

The proposal was laid before the Nebraska Power Review Board by John W. Kushing.

Increase for Others
While the new method of cost allocation recommended by Kushing would increase rates to other customers on the basis of present factors involved, Consumers has also proposed a reduction in cost estimates which would tend to reduce all rate changes.

The second day of testimony in the rate dispute included a night session. The hearing will be resumed at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

NPPS attorney Vance Leininger of Columbus altered the board that he will request a recess Wednesday, with resumption of the hearing sometime next month.

CPPD is contesting NPPS rates in a hearing which is the first of its kind to be held by the five-member board. The dispute is also the subject of a pending lawsuit.

Method Described
In criticizing the method by which NPPS allocates its costs among its customers, Kushing told board members that the wholesale power agency employed what he termed a modified "peak responsibility method."

Using this method, NPPS allocated costs on the basis of customer demand during the period in which total peak demand occurred, Kushing said.

Use of the "maximum demand method" would be "more fair and reasonable," he declared.

Would Share Costs
On that basis, customers would share costs in relation to their individual maximum demands, Kushing explained. NPPS customers are divided into two groups: Consumers and all other customers, including rural public power districts and municipal utilities.

"Both customers would thus be responsible for total capacity in relationship to their demands made upon it," Kushing said.

Only on Total
Kushing also argued that NPPS should base its cost allocations only on the total kilowatts generated by the system.

Instead, he said, NPPS also includes power generated by CPPD's Sheldon Station near Hallam and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation power.

NPPS is charging Consumers $2.56 per kilowatt under the new schedule, whereas CPPD paid $2.47 prior to Jan. 1, when the new contract became effective.

Signs In Cuba Point To More Guerrilla Activity

Havana (AP)—There are signs in Cuba which point to an increase in anti-Castro guerrilla activity, especially in Las Villas and Camaguey Provinces.

There is nothing to disprove reports of stepped-up opposition and the government's own actions tend to lend credence to them.

Raul Castro, armed forces minister, indirectly admitted the problem when he told officers, "The enemy has not been able to penetrate in considerable force here (Oriente Province) as it has in other provinces."

Out of Control?
Underground sources and "gusanos" (worms), as the opposition is known, insist the situation in Las Villas and Camaguey has gotten out of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's control. They claim guerrillas have tied up all available government forces and Castro has had to send reinforcements from Oriente and Havana.

Tumors have reached Havana of several ambushes where the army suffered large numbers of casualties. Castro appointed himself commander in chief of the army Tuesday in a reshuffle of top military command titles.

Castro, himself, however, has denied that anything extremely grave is going on.

Can't Be Checked
All the stories are impossible to check, since the affected areas are out of bounds to foreigners. The roads through them are heavily guarded which in itself seemed symptomatic of trouble.

Reliable persons traveling through Las Villas and Camaguey report heavy military movements and increased security measures.

Lutheran Meets Set Across State

Omaha — More than 500 pastors and laymen of the Nebraska Synod, Lutheran Church in America, are expected to attend a series of 11 "worship and witness" meetings to be held across the state through October 6.

The meetings will be held at LCA churches in Holdrege, Sept. 25, Bethel; Hastings, Sept. 26, First St. Paul; Lincoln, Sept. 27, United; Omaha, Sept. 29, Kountze; Omaha, Sept. 30, St. Timothy; Papillion, Oct. 1, Trinity; Fremont, Oct. 2, St. Paul; Columbus, Oct. 3, Trinity; Bloomfield, Oct. 4, St. Mark's; Emerson, Oct. 6, St. Luke's.

The Rev. Robert Shirck, Wayne, is chairman of the Committee on Evangelism which is sponsoring the meetings. Pastors and laymen representing the 175 LCA congregations in Nebraska are expected to attend.

Nemaha River Public Flood Hearing Slated

Kansas City (AP)—Army Engineers will hold a public hearing Oct. 22 to determine whether flood control improvements are presently available on the Nemaha River and tributaries in Nebraska and Kansas, it was announced Tuesday.

The announcement said a study already has been made of the Little Nemaha River and the hearing, to be held at Falls City, Neb., will deal only with the Nemaha.

Reds Face Ag Emergency

Moscow (AP) — In an atmosphere of agricultural emergency, the Soviet Union called on all citizens Tuesday to get out and help salvage what's left of this year's disastrous grain harvest.

Despite shortages in many Moscow stores, however, there was no panic buying of food. Wheat flour was virtually unobtainable, but bakers seemed to have ample supplies of bread.

The official farmers' newspaper, Selskoye Zhizn, warned that plowing for spring grain crops in many areas was "dangerously low." This could mean another harvest as bad as this one, which forced the Kremlin to spend over $600 million in scarce foreign exchange to assure bread for the people.

Kept in Dark
The average Russian has been kept in the dark about the grain shortages, but newspapers Tuesday began to give some idea that the situation was serious.

Izvestia, in its lead editorial, called on government and Communist Party organizations to get their people out and help farmers bring in the corn crop.

Sovetskaya Rossiya, organ of the Russian Federated Republic, told persons who live on farms—only a small proportion of them are farmers—to drop everything else and help with the harvest.

It appealed to city dwellers to rush to the fields too.

Newspapers denounced speculators and black marketers in scarce grains.

Weather Blamed
Chief blame has been put on unusually bad weather almost countrywide and inefficient use of mechanized equipment.

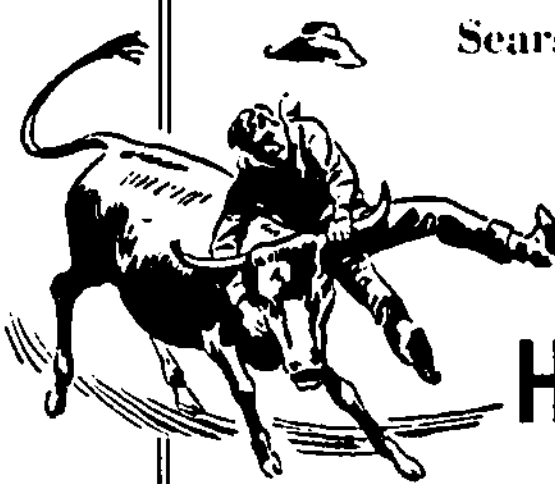

Selskoye Zhizn said plowing was behind most in the great Siberian and Central Asian grain areas—including Khrushchev's pet project, the virgin lands.

It claimed five million fewer acres have been prepared this year than last—a drop of about one-seventh in the area under winter wheat.

School Board Asked To Keep Doors Open To Land Transfers

By NANCY RAY
Star Staff Writer

Three state officials pleaded with the Lincoln School Board Tuesday not to "close the door" on residents requesting transfer of their land to Lincoln's school district.

Sen. Jerome Warner, Education Commissioner F. L. Miller, and Education Department official Hubert Wolfe, who handles school district re-organization plans, issued a plea for the "emphatic" school districts in urging the board to set up ground rules allowing such transfers.

The transfer of property from an approved district to an accredited one—if the accredited district is willing—was allowed in provisions of LB691, which goes into effect Oct. 19.

Under the new law, property owners in the Walton school district, for instance, could petition transfer of their land into the Lincoln district and send their children to Lincoln schools if the Lincoln district approves.

The state officials pointed out that the new law should result in an increased interest in school redistricting, because transfers out of non-accredited districts would lower their tax income and their enrollment.

Supt. Steven Watkins expressed concern over the possible "burdens" on Lincoln district school patrons caused by annexation of property of lower valuation which would put an increased tax burden on Lincoln district taxpayers to provide services for out-of-district students.

He also noted that transportation costs for out-of-district students must be considered, even if state law does not now require this service.

Ground Rules

"We have no intention of turning everyone away," Dr. Watkins stressed, "but we should say 'no' until we have ground rules that provide a realistic approach."

He noted that calls had already been received from parents of out-of-district students, inquiring about the new law's provisions.

Meadow Lane School Boundary Line Shifted

Meadow Lane School area parents lived up to their bargain and were rewarded with a Lincoln School Board ruling changing the school's eastern boundary lines Tuesday.

Parents of 83 grade school children had protested that it was unfair to place their children in an annex at 84th and Elizabeth when they lived just east of the main school at 72nd and Vine. They were told that the transfer back to the main school could be made if 23 or more of the children would volunteer to remain at the annex.

A representative of the parent's group produced proof Tuesday of 28 students in the area electing to remain at the annex, so School Board members shifted the main school boundary eastward allowing all other children living on both sides of Carlos Drive and west of that street, Holdrege to Vine, to enroll at the main school building.

Combination

The shift will leave the main building with class loads ranging from 37 pupils in kindergarten to 28 students in 5th grade, and Annex 2 class loads of 17 in kindergarten and 6 in 5th grade (5th and 6th grades will combine in one classroom).

Meadow Lane will have a capacity of nearly 1,500 students next fall under planning authorized Tuesday.

Board members authorized Lincoln architects Davis and Wilson to proceed with final plans for an additional two units to the present four-unit school which would make it the largest elementary building in the city.

Row of Classrooms

Ellety Davis, discussing plans for the addition, proposed a row of classrooms stretching 450 feet (about one and one-half blocks) along the north of the building.

The addition will include 12 classrooms and a large audiovisual room to take some of the pressure off the school's auditorium and multipurpose rooms. An addition is also planned to the school's kindergarten wing.

Bidding is expected this fall to allow a spring construction start and completion by September, 1964.

New Effort Launched To Get U.S. Aid For Arnold School

Lincoln public school officials launched another effort Tuesday to get federal funds to enlarge General Arnold School to meet the increased student load.

School Board members approved a resolution asking $235,000 from federal agencies for a six-class addition to the federally owned, school district-operated grade school at Lincoln Air Force Base.

The school is now operating at 181 students over capacity, Supt. Steven Watkins told the board. Double sessions — the only ones in the Lincoln system this year — are being held in the primary grade.

Kenneth B. Clark of the Clark & Enersen architectural firm, showed the board members preliminary plans for a two-story addition which would relieve the present crowding.

Dr. Watkins expressed hope that some progress can be made to secure governmental approval within the next two months in order to complete the addition by next fall.

Board member J. Arthur Danielson expressed hope that military officials at the base would make a strong effort to help secure the funds.

Okay Given To Business Office Study

A searching review of the Lincoln Public Schools' business affairs office by the district's auditors was ordered Tuesday by the School Board.

Board member James Stuart, noting the approaching retirement of Asst. Supt. David Sell, said that a "comprehensive study of the methods and procedures" might uncover some ways of modernizing business procedures in the system, and perhaps disclose the need for "automation" of the system.

The public schools' auditors are the firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co.

Board Member I. J. Devoe cautioned that use of automated procedures should not be considered until it was sure that the volume of work justified installation of such equipment. He agreed the study was needed.

Candy Receives Thorough 'Study' By School Board

Lincoln School Board members listened to some "sweet" talk Tuesday and took the matter under advisement while munching on the exhibits.

Freeman Everett, Russell Stover Candies Inc. official, and Glenn Baldwin of the General Tobacco and Candy Co. appealed to the board to reconsider its January ruling that no candy, food or carbonated beverages can be sold before or during school hours — excluding cafeteria fare — at junior and senior highs.

Everett exhibited candy, gelatin and pudding products to show that similar ingredients were used in all, and one alert school official asked him to leave the exhibits. The candy became a mid-morning snack for those attending the 2½-hour meeting.

Nurses Training Space Acquired By School Board

The Lincoln School Board approved the leasing of space in the Rudge & Guenzel Building, 12th and N, for an 18-month practical nursing course to be conducted with funds from the National Manpower Act.

The space will include classrooms and a laboratory area to serve approximately 30 students. C. C. Kimball Co., the managing firm for the building, offered the space for $700 monthly rental plus utilities.

Chester Gausman, director of adult and vocational education, said leased space was necessary because the classes would be conducted in the daytime when school facilities were in use.

The course is expected to start in October.

Candy Receives Thorough 'Study' By School Board

Lincoln School Board members listened to some "sweet" talk Tuesday and took the matter under advisement while munching on the exhibits.

Freeman Everett, Russell Stover Candies Inc. official, and Glenn Baldwin of the General Tobacco and Candy Co. appealed to the board to reconsider its January ruling that no candy, food or carbonated beverages can be sold before or during school hours — excluding cafeteria fare — at junior and senior highs.

Troop Agreement

Washington (AP) — The Washington Post quoted informed sources Tuesday night as saying an agreement has been worked out to keep a 5,000-man United Nations military force in the Congo for six months after the end of this year.

Meadow Lane School Boundary Line Shifted

Meadow Lane School area parents lived up to their bargain and were rewarded with a Lincoln School Board ruling changing the school's eastern boundary lines Tuesday.

Parents of 83 grade school children had protested that it was unfair to place their children in an annex at 84th and Elizabeth when they lived just east of the main school at 72nd and Vine. They were told that the transfer back to the main school could be made if 23 or more of the children would volunteer to remain at the annex.

Nurses Training Space Acquired By School Board

The Lincoln School Board approved the leasing of space in the Rudge & Guenzel Building, 12th and N, for an 18-month practical nursing course to be conducted with funds from the National Manpower Act.

The space will include classrooms and a laboratory area to serve approximately 30 students. C. C. Kimball Co., the managing firm for the building, offered the space for $700 monthly rental plus utilities.

Chester Gausman, director of adult and vocational education, said leased space was necessary because the classes would be conducted in the daytime when school facilities were in use.

The course is expected to start in October.

DISCRIMINATION — it's world-wide!

Are race problems a U.S. exclusive? Some propagandists may say so. But what about: —British race riots? —Korean "ghettos" in Japan? —India's color-conscious caste system?

And above all, read about "socialist equality" in the Red bloc — where visiting Africans have been called "black apes!" Here's an eye-opening survey of world-wide prejudice! Read it in the October Reader's Digest now on sale.

A representative of the parent's group produced proof Tuesday of 28 students in the area electing to remain at the annex, so School Board members shifted the main school boundary eastward allowing all other children living on both sides of Carlos Drive and west of that street, Holdrege to Vine, to enroll at the main school building.

Combination

The shift will leave the main building with class loads ranging from 35 pupils in kindergarten to 28 students in 5th grade, and Annex 2 class loads of 17 in kindergarten and 6 in 5th grade (5th and 6th grades will combine in one classroom).

Meadow Lane will have a capacity of nearly 1,500 students next fall under planning authorized Tuesday.

Board members authorized Lincoln architects Davis and Wilson to proceed with final plans for an additional two units to the present four-unit school—which would make it the largest elementary building in the city.

Row of Classrooms

Ellery Davis, discussing plans for the addition, proposed a row of classrooms stretching 450 feet (about one and one-half blocks) along the north of the building.

The addition will include 12 classrooms and a large audio-visual room to take some of the pressure off the school's auditorium and multipurpose rooms. An addition is also planned to the school's kindergarten wing.

Bidding is expected this fall, to allow a spring construction start and completion by September, 1964.

Ground Rules

"We have no intention of turning everyone away," Dr. Watkins stressed, "but we should say 'no' until we have ground rules that provide a realistic approach."

He noted that calls had already been received from parents of out-of-district students, inquiring about the new law's provisions.

New Effort Launched To Get U.S. Aid For Arnold School

Lincoln public school officials launched another effort Tuesday to get federal funds to enlarge General Arnold School to meet the increased student load.

School Board members approved a resolution asking $235,000 from federal agencies for a six-class addition to the federally owned, school district-operated grade school at Lincoln Air Force Base.

He also noted that transportation costs for out-of-district students must be considered, even if state law does not now require this service.

Okay Given To Business Office Study

A searching review of the Lincoln Public Schools' business affairs office by the district's auditors was ordered Tuesday by the School Board.

Board member James Stuart, noting the approaching retirement of Asst. Supt. David Sell, said that a "comprehensive study of the methods and procedures" might uncover some ways of modernizing business procedures in the system, and perhaps disclose the need for "automation" of the system.

The school is now operating at 181 students over capacity, Supt. Steven Watkins told the board. Double sessions — the only ones in the Lincoln system this year — are being held in the primary grade.

Kenneth B. Clark of the Clark & Enersen architectural firm, showed the board members preliminary plans for a two-story addition which would relieve the present crowding.

Dr. Watkins expressed hope that some progress can be made to secure governmental approval within the next two months in order to complete the addition by next fall.

To Examine Relations

Fredericton, N.B. (AP)—Dr. Eric Williams, prime minister of Trinidad-Tobago, will attend a three-day conference in New Brunswick examining relations between Canada and the West Indies. The conference opens Oct. 25.

Board member I. J. Devoe cautioned that use of automated procedures should not be considered until it was sure that the volume of work justified installation of such equipment. He agreed the study was needed.

Hodges Favors Increasing Exports To Communist Nations

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said Tuesday he personally favors permitting the export of more civilian goods to Communist-bloc nations.

Hodges told a news conference he has not made such a specific recommendation to President Kennedy, but has discussed with the President a recommendation of American trade policy with the Soviet countries.

The question is "under very definite consideration in a number of the administration," Hodges said.

The President "has been thinking about it," Hodges told a questioner, but has not indicated whether the White House is leaning toward an easing of the present restraints on exports to the Soviet bloc.

Barrier Impractical

As for himself, Hodges said, he feels that the East-West trade barrier has not been as practical an approach as might have been adopted, in view of the fact that virtually all of this country's allies are selling goods to Russia and the Soviet satellites at a multibillion dollar annual clip.

"I am in favor of selling goods," said Hodges, who has been charged by Kennedy with spearheading a nationwide drive to expand U.S. exports 10%—an increase which virtually would wipe out the balance of payments deficit.

Hodges indicated that the leaders at last week's White House conference on export expansion might have considerable weight in the government's decision on opening up trade with the communists.

Industry For It

He made public Tuesday the recommendations of the conference's 11 committees. Several of them noted that industrialists attending the meeting favored a lowering of the barrier, although none of the committees was devoted specifically to that question.

The commerce secretary said that the widespread business support for a policy shift was something new in the situation.

Nevertheless, he told questioners, he did no more than discuss the recommendations with Kennedy, without himself urging adoption of a freer policy.

The Commerce Department administers export controls, and under existing policies rejects not only goods which could build up the Soviet bloc militarily but also goods which might enhance its economic power.

It's Not Working

Businessmen — and, in the last few days, many Wheat-belt senators — have objected that this policy isn't working, since the Soviets are finding it perfectly easy to buy what they want from other free world nations.

This was exemplified in Canada's recent announcement of a deal to sell $500 million worth of Canadian wheat to Russia.

Although Midwestern senators have pointed out that sales to Russia could help American farmers, others have objected that selling to Russia would, in effect, be helping Cuba, since Russian wheat could be channeled to the Castro regime if Soviet needs were met from abroad.

THE GREATEST AMERICAN WHISKEY

A TOTALLY NEW '64 RAMBLER COMING OCTOBER 3

You are seeing your first glimpse of another compact car breakthrough by Rambler.

That fresh, beautiful new grille belongs to the all-new 1964 Rambler American. It's the lowest-priced Rambler of all but it's filled with exciting new style, features and comforts you'd expect to find only in the most expensive cars. It comes in sedans, wagons, hardtops, convertible. There are two other brilliant new Rambler series for 1964: the Rambler Classic 6 or V-8 and the Rambler Ambassador V-8. Behind all three is the same principle—the idea of listening to your needs, then building the answer into automobiles. That's the Rambler Idea.

The totally new 1964 Rambler American, the compact economy king, is completely new in styling, from bold, rakish grille to curved-glass side windows.

Completely new and beautiful interiors have stretch-out room for six adults—rear seat is 12 inches wider. Station wagons have much more cargo space.

The American ride is smoother, steadier, quieter, with completely new suspension, front and rear, longer wheelbase, wider tread, new type engine mounts.

This lowest-priced Rambler is so beautifully built, it even has costly coil springs in the seat cushions.

The brilliant new 1964 Rambler Classic gives you a choice of Six or 198-hp V-8. Beautifully balanced, it's big on the inside, with room for six big 6-footers—trim on the outside for easy handling and parking.

11 CARS FOLLOWED RAMBLER, BUT NONE REALLY GOT THE RAMBLER IDEA. THAT'S WHY RAMBLER OUTSELLS THEM ALL

What is the Rambler Idea? Basically, respect for the judgment of the customer. Rambler listens to what car owners say. That's why Rambler leads in solving their problems; why Rambler built the first compact car. Others followed Rambler in size—compact car sales have increased 20-fold in 6 years. But size is not the Rambler Idea. The Rambler Idea is balance: big inside, trim outside; good performance; good economy; luxurious comfort; easy handling. Plus: quality without any compromise—a total of obviously better values, at remarkable low prices. That is why Rambler outsells all its followers.

See new sedans and station wagons and a dazzling all-new hardtop. See a host of exciting new options (also available on the Ambassador). A new steering wheel adjusts to the most comfortable driving position for tall drivers, short drivers, all drivers. A new kind of floor-stick automatic transmission lets you shift it, or it shifts itself.

The 1964 Rambler Ambassador V-8 is magnificently new, brings you total excellence in a high-performance, luxury V-8. New models include the sedan, station wagon and two all-new hardtops; one so luxurious, it has center armrests front and rear, bucket seats, console, 270-hp V-8—all standard.

Of course, every 1964 Rambler will have the famous Rambler extra-value features that mean more usefulness to the user: exclusive rustproofing; exclusive rattle-free construction; ceramic-armored muffler; double-safety brakes; greater freedom from service needs; more comfortable seating options.

'Guests' Slate Meetings

... TO SEE BIRMINGHAM WHITES, NEGROES

Birmingham, Ala. (AP) — Two presidential representatives describing themselves as "friendly guests" flew to Birmingham Tuesday to help white and Negro leaders patch up racial differences.

The men—former Army secretary Kenneth C. Royall and former Army football coach Earl H. Blaik—were sent to Birmingham by the President, as unofficial arbiters between the two races.

"We are here to do what we can to help," was their comment on arrival at the Birmingham airport shortly before noon.

Royall and Blaik were non-committal about their plans. They said they do not know how long they will be in the city.

Blaik also said that they do not intend to remain in contact with reporters.

Asked to whom they would report, they said "Our plans are indefinite."

They were met by Mayor Albert Boutwell and City Council President M. E. Wiggins.

"I understand that your mission is advisory," Boutwell said. "The problem of better communications between people of all classes, creeds and races is not confined to this area."

"The lines of communications between our local citizens have been hampered largely by professional outsiders who thrive on the fruits of tension and unrest."

The mayor offered to make available "all the information we have which will help you appraise the situation in this area so that you may make knowledgeable recommendations for consideration, not only by our local citizens, but by others."

Blaik and Royall arrived in a civilian twin-engine plane. They were accompanied by Robert Larsen, a Justice Department attorney. Two FBI agents were on hand for their arrival.

Boutwell read a brief statement to the visitors before they departed for downtown.

Royall in a car with the mayor and Blaik in a separate vehicle with Wiggins. They had lunch in a private club.

LT. GEN. W. M. GREENE

Mild-Mannered Lt. Gen. Greene To Lead Marines Into Space Age

Washington (AP)—Mild-mannered Lt. Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr. was named Tuesday to become the next commandant of the Marines—and he promptly thrust the corps into the space age.

Veteran planner Greene may not have the gung-ho, swashbuckling aura that surrounds Gen. David M. Shoup, the Medal of Honor winner now serving as commandant. But any thought that the 55-year-old general might be colorless was exploded at his first news conference.

Meeting with reporters after the White House announced President Kennedy had chosen him, Vermonted Greene spoke of rocketing Marines—1,200 of them at a time—in a single space ship from North Carolina to Africa.

Way Out

The newly designated commandant acknowledged this is all "way out on the horizon"—maybe in the late 1970's—but it was clear he feels it is something to think of in practical terms.

The White House announced that Greene will become the 23rd commandant of the corps on Dec. 31 when Shoup steps down after a four-year term. Greene will be given a four-year hitch, subject to Senate confirmation.

White House sources said Kennedy tried to give Shoup another term, but that Shoup declined because (1) he did not think his health would let him serve another four years and (2) Shoup thought it was good for the corps to have a periodic change in commandant.

Introducing newsmen to Greene at the Pentagon, Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth said of Shoup: "His health is not poor." But Korth said the robust-looking Shoup "feels he should preserve his health."

Salty Talker

The 59-year-old Shoup, a World War II hero renowned for his salty language, is still about three years from mandatory retirement age.

The Navy secretary was emphatic that he was not considering some other assignment in the corps for the outgoing commandant.

However, both the White House and Korth hinted Shoup might get some other government post.

As chief of staff of the Marine Corps, Greene has been operating in Shoup's shadow for the past four years. While his name is something less than a household word in the country at large, Greene is popular within the corps.

Men who work closely with him describe him as quiet, self-effacing, somewhat scholarly.

At the outset of his news conference, the small—5-foot, 9-inch, slender, dark-haired Greene indicated he has no plans for any immediate innovations and pledged to continue the improvement of the corps. He paid tribute to things done by Shoup in the past years—such as Shoup's admonition to officers and men alike "to be a Marine 24 hours a day."

Startling Forecasts

But before anybody was aware of what was happening, he slipped into what amounted to some startling forecasts for the future.

"I am of the firm belief it would be possible to develop in five or six years a kind of rocket transportation to move a small number of troops and supplies over comparably short distances, say 300 miles," Greene said.

Some of the methods of launch and control already have been developed, Greene said, and the big problem is licking the re-entry problem for such a troop carrier.

He envisioned the time when the Marines could launch a full battalion from Camp Lejeune, N.C. "and have it land in Africa in 80 minutes."

The Nebraska tourist group, including Indian Chief Spotted Back, will board an airliner Wednesday for the return trip. They're due in Omaha at 7:55 p.m., local time.

Chief Spotted Back attracted attention wherever he went. Tuesday he and Mrs. Morrison visited a French children's hospital.

"He was a sensation," said Mrs. Morrison. "You should have seen those children when he went through the wards."

Monday the group met with French travel officials and were guests of the French "Lasso Club," composed of fans of the American West.

Harold Williams New County FHA Member

Harold Williams has been appointed to succeed Ervin E. Williams as a member of the county committee of the Farmers Home Administration.

The county committee reviews applications for FHA loans, made to farmers to strengthen and improve their farm operations.

SHREVEPORT POLICE HALT STUDENT RIOT

Shreveport, La. (UPI) — Negro police Tuesday broke up a rock-throwing demonstration by Negro junior high school students with four shots fired high over the demonstrators' heads.

That discouraged the students, who were throwing rocks at passing automobiles and shouting "freedom now." They returned to their classrooms in J. S. Clarke (Negro) Junior High School, upon the urging of their assistant school superintendent.

Public Safety Commissioner George D'Artois earlier denied charges by a Negro integration leader that his men beat Negro men, women and children in racial demonstrations Sunday and Monday.

"No one was beaten or anything else," D'Artois said.

Negro members of the police force were the first to arrive at noon Tuesday when the Negro students, in groups of 25-50, started throwing stones at automobiles. The Negro officers fired four times over the heads of the Negroes before D'Artois and white police arrived.

D'Artois told Assistant School Supt. W. C. Jones to get the students back into school. He said he was tired of having to send men to Negro schools where Negro children beat Negro men, women and officials could not control students.

DeArtois told Jones that if police had to come back, they would return in force with tear gas and horses.

School officials got the students back into class.

Clarence Laws of Dallas, southwest regional secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), said Tuesday he telegraphed President Kennedy for help from Shreveport Sunday.

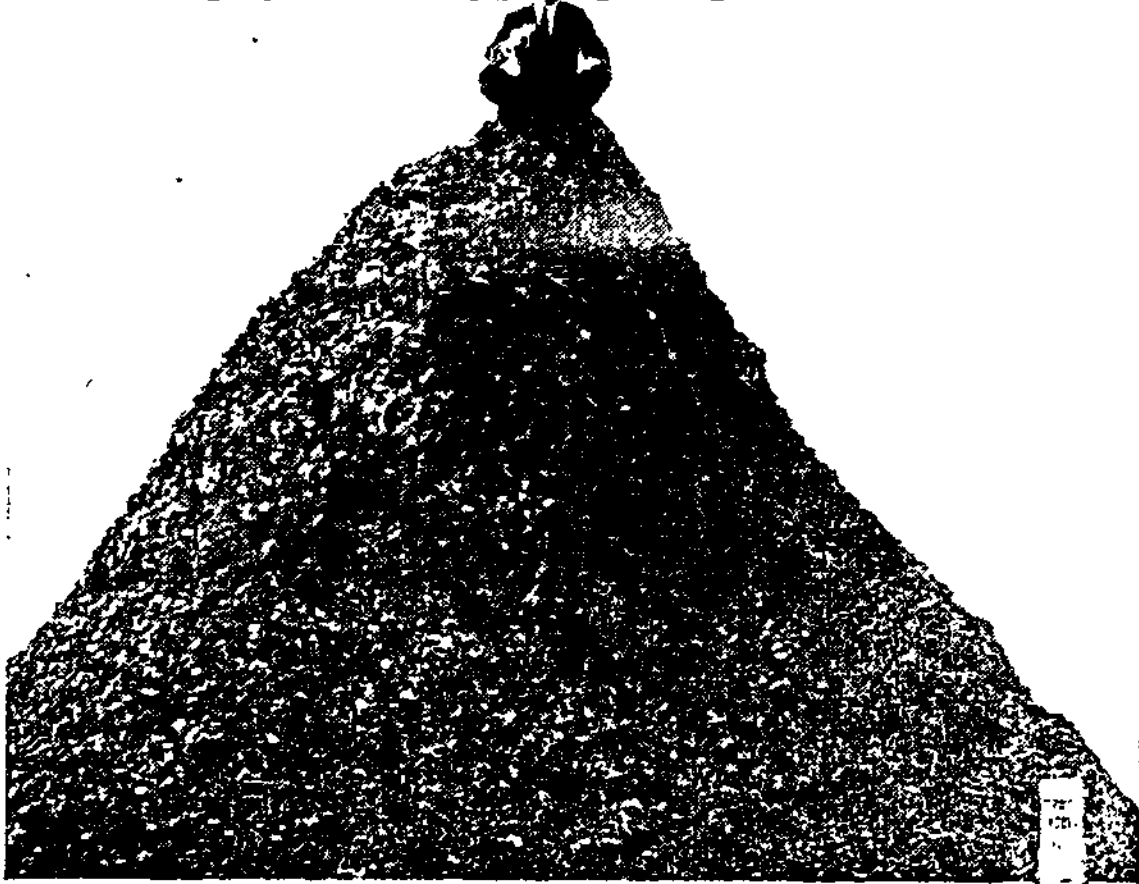

Laws, charging that police beat Shreveport Negroes, said "Shreveport is probably one of the most explosive cities in the country and urged federal intervention to 'prevent tragedy'."

Police arrested four Negroes after Sunday's demonstration and 19 after Monday's. Eleven of the 19 arrested Monday said they were members of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

Sunday, 750-1,000 Negroes held a memorial service at the Little Union Baptist Church for four Negro children killed a week earlier in the bombing of a Birmingham, Ala., church.

Police guarded the church. Trouble started because, police charged, Negroes emerging from the memorial service threw stones at them.

'Guests' Slate Meetings

... TO SEE BIRMINGHAM WHITES, NEGROES

Birmingham, Ala. (AP) — Two presidential representatives describing themselves as "friendly guests" flew to Birmingham Tuesday to help white and Negro leaders patch up racial differences. The men—former Army secretary Kenneth C. Royall and former Army football coach Earl H. Blaik—were sent to Birmingham by the President as unofficial arbiters between the two races.

"We are here to do what we can to help," was their comment on arrival at the Birmingham airport shortly before noon.

Royall and Blaik were non-committal about their plans. They said they do not know how long they will be in the city.

Blaik also said that they do not intend to remain in contact with reporters.

Asked to whom they would report, they said: "Our plans are indefinite."

They were met by Mayor Albert Boutwell and City Council President M. E. Wiggins.

"I understand that your mission is advisory," Boutwell said. "The problem of better communications between people of all classes, creeds and races is not confined to this area."

"The lines of communications between our local citizens have been hampered largely by professional outsiders who thrive on the fruits of tension and unrest."

The mayor offered to make available "all the information we have which will help you appraise the situation in this area so that you may make knowledgeable recommendations for consideration, not only by our local citizens, but by others."

Blaik and Royall arrived in a civilian twin-engine plane. They were accompanied by Robert Larsen, a Justice Department attorney. Two FBI agents were on hand for their arrival.

Boutwell read a brief statement to the visitors before they departed for downtown—Royall in a car with the mayor and Blaik in a separate vehicle with Wiggins. They had lunch in a private club.

LT. GEN. W. M. GREENE

Mild-Mannered Lt. Gen. Greene To Lead Marines Into Space Age

Washington (AP)—Mild-mannered Lt. Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr. was named Tuesday to become the next commandant of the Marines—and he promptly thrust the corps into the Space Age.

Veteran planner Greene may not have the gung-ho, swashbuckling aura that surrounds Gen. David M. Shoup, the Medal of Honor winner now serving as commandant. But any thought that the 55-year-old general might be colorless was exploded at his first news conference.

Meeting with reporters after the White House announced President Kennedy had chosen him, Vermonted Greene spoke of rocketing Marines—1,200 of them at a time—in a single space ship from North Carolina to Africa.

Way Out

The newly designated commandant acknowledged this is all "way out on the horizon"—maybe in the late 1970's—but it was clear he feels it is something to think of in practical terms.

The White House announced that Greene will become the 23rd commandant of the corps on Dec. 31 when Shoup steps down after a four-year term. Greene will be given a four-year hitch, subject to Senate confirmation.

White House sources said Kennedy tried to give Shoup another term, but that Shoup declined because (1) he did not think his health would let him serve another four years and (2) Shoup thought it was good for the corps to have a periodic change in commandant.

Introducing newsmen to Greene at the Pentagon, Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth said of Shoup:

"His health is not poor." But Korth said the robust-looking Shoup "feels he should preserve his health."

Salty Talker

The 59-year-old Shoup, a World War II hero renowned for his salty language, is still about three years from mandatory retirement age.

The Navy secretary was emphatic that he was not considering some other assignment in the corps for the outgoing commandant.

However, both the White House and Korth hinted Shoup might get some other government post.

Nebraska Tourist Group Due Back Wednesday Night

Paris (AP) — "I think we've spread a lot of good will," said Mrs. Frank Morrison Tuesday at the end of the "Sell Nebraska" tour of Europe.

The Nebraska tourist group, including Indian Chief Spotted Back, will board an airliner Wednesday for the return trip. They're due in Omaha at 7:55 p.m., local time.

Chief Spotted Back attracted attention wherever he went. Tuesday he and Mrs. Morrison visited a French children's hospital.

"He was a sensation," said Mrs. Morrison. "You should have seen those children when he went through the wards." Monday the group met with French travel officials and were guests of the French "Lasso Club," composed of fans of the American West.

Harold Williams has been appointed to succeed Ervin E. Williams as a member of the county committee of the Farmers Home Administration.

SHREVEPORT POLICE HALT STUDENT RIOT

Shreveport, La. (UPI) — Negro police Tuesday broke up a rock-throwing demonstration by Negro junior high school students with four shots fired high over the demonstrators' heads.

That discouraged the students, who were throwing rocks at passing automobiles and shouting "freedom now." They returned to their classrooms in J. S. Clarke (Negro) Junior High School, upon the urging of their assistant school superintendent.

Public Safety Commissioner George D'Artois earlier denied charges by a Negro integration leader that his men beat Negro men, women and children in racial demonstrations Sunday and Monday.

"No one was beaten or anything else," D'Artois said.

Negro members of the police force were the first police to arrive at noon Tuesday when the Negro students, in groups of 25-50, started throwing stones at automobiles. The Negro officers fired four times over the heads of the Negroes before D'Artois and white police arrived.

D'Artois told Assistant School Supt. W. C. Jones to get the students back into school. He said he was tired of having to send men to Negro schools where Negro officials could not control students.

De'Artois told Johns that if police had to come back, they would return in force with tear gas and horses.

School officials got the students back into class.

Clarence Laws of Dallas, southwest regional secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), said Tuesday he telegraphed President Kennedy for help from Shreveport Sunday.

Laws, charging that police beat Shreveport Negroes, said Shreveport "probably is one of the most explosive cities" in the country and urged federal intervention to "prevent tragedy."

Police arrested four Negroes after Sunday's demonstration and 19 after Monday's. Eleven of the 19 arrested Monday said they were members of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

Sunday, 750-1,000 Negroes held a memorial service at the Little Union Baptist Church for four Negro children killed a week earlier in the bombing of a Birmingham, Ala., church.

Police guarded the church. Trouble started because, police charged, Negroes emerging from the memorial service threw stones at them.

FILTERED THROUGH A "MOUNTAIN" OF CHARCOAL

Today, Smirnoff outsells every scotch and gin

Smirnoff is filtered and refined through 7 tons of activated charcoal, literally a "mountain" of charcoal. This "black magic" removes most of the congeners. No wonder Smirnoff is the world's finest liquor. It has no "bite," blends perfectly with fruit juices or soft drinks. Try breathless Smirnoff today, on-the-rocks or in a Martini, and find out why.

Grace's Niece Is Missing

Philadelphia (AP) — The 15-year-old niece of Princess Grace of Monaco has been missing from home four weeks. City detectives have been assigned to find the attractive teen-ager, who at the age of 7 was a flower girl at her famous aunt's royal wedding.

Police Inspector George Kronbar disclosed Tuesday that Mary Lee Davis disappeared Aug. 28 from the seashore home at Ocean City, N.J., of her grandmother, Mrs. John B. Kelly.

Kronbar said it is believed

MARY LEE DAVIS

Mary Lee ran away with John Paul Jones Jr., 20, who also was last seen Aug. 28. He said police were asked just last Wednesday to search for the Davis girl.

Kronbar said that police investigation disclosed that Jones on several occasions told his father he intended to "run away" with Miss Davis. The inspector said they had been going together since November, 1962.

Kronbar said it is believed that the pair intended to marry and may have fled to a state with more liberal marriage laws.

Mrs. Kelly, widow of the late industrialist and sportsman, denies that her granddaughter is missing. She says Mary was "off with a friend for the winter."

Kronbar, however, said detectives from the intelligence squad "are conducting a search for the girl."

Looks Like Star
Miss Davis, who looks much like her aunt, former movie star Grace Kelly, now wife of Prince Ranier of Monaco, would have entered 11th grade this month at the exclusive Academy of the Assumption here.

Her mother, Mrs. Margaret Conlan, 38, telephoned the school, however, and said Mary Lee would not attend opening of classes Sept. 9. Later, school officials said they made inquiry, and were told she was missing.

Kronbar said the Jones boy was graduated from Chestnut Hill Academy, a college preparatory school, and was to have enrolled this month at Susquehanna University in Selinsgrove, Pa., but failed to register. His father, an architect, has not reported the son missing. He said the youth was at college, but declined to identify the college.

Courtesies Honor Soon-To-Be Bride

Numerous courtesies have been given during the past several days for bride-elect Miss Mary Louise Samuelson of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Samuelson of Stromsburg, whose marriage to Ronald Katz of Beatrice will take place on Saturday, Sept. 28.

Among the parties for Miss Samuelson was the party for which Mrs. Arnold Bruns, Mrs. Glen Katz and Mrs. Harvey Cramer were hostesses on Sunday afternoon in Beatrice. The honoree was presented with a miscellaneous shower. Also entertaining recently for Miss Samuelson were Mrs. Emil Brodecky and Mrs. Donald Kreik who were hostesses at a 6:30 o'clock dessert supper at Hotel Cornhusker. The evening was spent informally and Miss Samuelson was given a one-gift shower.

Another party hostess for Miss Samuelson was Miss Rosemary Wagner who entertained a group of guests informally at her home. The soon-to-be bride was presented with a linen shower.

Sorority Pledges Honored

Various of the NU sorority alumnae are paying courtesy to their chapter's new pledge classes on the campus.

On Saturday, for instance, Delta Delta Delta sorority alumnae will honor this year's pledge class when the group entertains on Saturday.

The affair is to be a 12:30 o'clock salad luncheon at the home of Mrs. Earl Lampshire, 1324 Aldrich Rd.

Also on Saturday is the 11 o'clock brunch for which the members of Chi Omega alumnae will be hostesses when they entertain the sorority's new pledge class. The brunch will be at the home of Mrs. Horace V. Munger on Old Cheney Rd.

Dear Abby

He's Running For Exercise Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor asked me to write for her as she can't write English. Here is her problem: Her husband is 76 and retired. She is 62. Last May they attended a convention. Her husband is such a playboy she had to shift for herself while he ran after the girls young enough to be his daughters. Her question is, should she go to another one of these conventions scheduled in October? She doesn't know whether to go and be hurt again, or to stay home and let him go alone and have the good time he doesn't deserve.

A FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: A 76-year-old playboy is only running for exercise. Tell your friend to go along. She'd be more miserable at home wondering what the old coot was up to.

DEAR ABBY: I feel like a highlight on the local sight-seeing tour. My husband and I have a lovely new home, of which we are very proud, but his mother has gone overboard about it. She brings all the visiting firemen to go through my house without even calling to tell me they are coming. I have small children and the usual chores to do, but that doesn't bother her. She appears with the sight-seers at all hours. Should I sell tickets, or tell her that appointments must be made in advance, or what? Please don't print my name, or my head will be on display with the rest of the house.

"HATES SURPRISES"
DEAR "HATES": Tell your mother-in-law that you don't mind being an attraction on her sight-seeing tour, but you don't like surprise visits. Ask her please to give you at least three hours' notice.

DEAR ABBY: You always say that a wife should not convict her husband on circumstantial evidence. Just because she happens to find a hairpin in his pocket, or lipstick on his handkerchief, you say is no reason to lose trust in him. Well, I sure disagree with you 100%. Where there's smoke, there's fire. My old man swore on his mother's grave that he was true to me. I found out later that he was lying.

TRUSTING FOOL
DEAR TRUSTING: You win a few, lose a few. I still say, don't let the smoke get in your eyes.

DEAR ABBY: What has become of manners? I am employed at one of the most exclusive stores in this city. We carry the finest china, crystal and silver, and cater to the best people. You would be shocked at the number of so-called "well-bred ladies" who apparently have never heard of acknowledging a wedding gift. I am the person who checks to assure the sender that her gift was received by the bride. Please print this. I have frequently been tempted to telephone the bride's mother to tell her please to put the spurs into her lazy daughter. Thank you.

PARK MANOR

To live in suburbia successfully, a person must possess multiple talents — all of which are a necessary part of every-day living.

Among these are knowing when not to bid four spades; the ability to pack two suitcases for three children, one husband, and yourself on a moment's notice and making sure that the next meeting for which you already are five minutes late is actually a come-as-you-are coffee.

Recent newcomers to this wonderful way of living in society are Capt. and Mrs. Leonard Starr. Mrs. Starr is formerly from Byers, Kan., and Capt. Starr from Paola, Kan.

These new suburban residents moved to Lincoln from Oregon where Capt. Starr was previously stationed.

With honorary credits in suitcase packing, Mr. and

Club Plans 'Hootenanny'

The members of the Ceres Club will be pot-luck supper hostesses when they honor their husbands on Saturday evening. The party will be held at the College of Agriculture Union and planned for the after-supper hours is a "hootenanny."

Mrs. Lloyd Fischer is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Albert Schwarz left Saturday morning for the annual World War I Convention.

Held in Detroit, Mich. this year, the convention drew about a dozen Lincoln residents, as well as people from all over the country.

A shorter trip, but still one with a mission, was that of Mrs. Ray E. Coons who left last Thursday.

As Eucumenical Relations Chairman for her church and district, Mrs. Coons journeyed to Wymore, to begin plans for the Presbyterian state Synodical meeting Sept. 24 and 25 and the district meeting October 8, 9, and 10.

It seems probable that one suburban family had a fun afternoon Friday. Balloons, party favors, candy, and paper hats were all part of the scene at the Maynard Week's home.

Attendants Named

Revealing plans this morning for her approaching marriage is Miss Mary Beth Strong, who will become the bride of William F. Blacker on Sunday, Sept. 29.

For the ceremony, which will be solemnized at 4 o'clock, at Luther Memorial Church in Syracuse, the bride-elect has named Miss Cheryl Berner of Otoe as her maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Robert Strong, Syracuse; Mrs. Sam Blacker, Scottsdale, Ariz.; Mrs. Neil Nannen, Lincoln; and Mrs. Ron Beckman, Dubuque, Iowa.

Miss Lisa Strong and Miss Dana Way will be the flower girls, and lighting the chancel candles will be Mrs. Milton Phelps, Nelson, and Mrs. Eddie Stubbendeck, Lincoln.

Sam Blacker of Scottsdale, Ariz., will serve his brother as best man, and the corps of ushers will include Jerry Elders, Russell Strong and Jerome Liesemeyer, Syracuse; Neil Nannen and Larry Hunt, Lincoln; Dewey Jensen, Bennet; and Ted Leeters, Unadilla.

There is nothing more special for a four-year-old society deb, such as Sheri Week than a birthday party. There was plenty of ice cream, plenty of cake, and best of all, there were friends to help celebrate 48 months of living.

Sheri's guests were Shelley Bauer, Allan Wohlers, Clara Tao, Mat Anthony, Scott Redman, Laurie Gottula, and her sister, Susie Week.

The only thing better than a birthday gift is possibly a Christmas present. It may still be 92 days until December 25, but Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sutton have received their "present of the year."

They are the parents of a son, Jeffrey Wayne. Mrs. Sutton is the former Nancy Wilson, daughter of Mrs. John Harms of Syracuse. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Merl Sutton of Hedrick, Ia.

A very special family reunion recently was attended by Mr. and Mrs. William Moore, and daughter Irene; Mr. and Mrs. Wendall Stevens and family; Mr. and Mrs. James Welch and family, all of Lincoln, and Mrs. Opal Boell and family of Greenwood.

The occasion was the 80th birthday of Mrs. Moore's father, C. M. Stevens of Page. Two days were spent in the northern part of the state honoring Mr. Stevens' anniversary.

Since "family" seems to be a key word in suburbia, it is only natural that a family dinner last Saturday was part of the activity at the Gunnar Overgaard home.

Mr. Overgaards' brother, Chris of South Bend, Ind., spent a few days in Lincoln while on a business trip.

Lincoln--A Good Place To Live

From the left: Lt. Col. Mealka, John, Ronald—the masculine half of a set of twins—and Mrs. Mealka—the 10 year-old twin. Patricia apparently was camera-shy. She was not to be found.

An Air Force family which has established some sort of record—or maybe we should say, several records—during its residency in Lincoln is that of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John C. Mealka and their three children, John, 12, and twins, Ronald and Patricia, 11.

Warm in their praise of Lincoln and its citizens, the Mealkas would gladly exchange places with anyone who describes our city as a "good place to be from." Lt. Col. and Mrs. Mealka and their family would love to remain permanently, but because of family and health reasons they are leaving Oct. 1, following Col. Mealka's retirement, for a new home in Tucson, Ariz.

So, the Mealkas are packing bag and baggage, and sadly saying their farewells to Lincoln friends after nine years in the Capital City—an unofficial record for an officer at the Lincoln Air Force Base, and a lifetime for the Mealka children who consider Lincoln their hometown.

Although the family recently has resided at base housing, Col. and Mrs. Mealka purchased a home upon their arrival and quickly entered into the activities of the community.

Enthusiastic over Lincoln's "unsurpassed" school system, Col. and Mrs. Mealka also took advantage of the University of Nebraska to enroll for many courses which they missed in their college careers. While the three younger members of the family studied the three "R's", Col. Mealka boned up on political science and engineering, and Mrs. Mealka, who claims that adding and subtracting is not exactly her dish of tea, pursued knowledge in money and banking courses and business law.

"Leisure time" is an unknown phrase in the family circle and there are not many organizations in the city that have not profited by the Mealka family's participation. Cub Scouts, Brownies, Little League, PTA, shared the Mealkas' interests as well as Scottish Rite and Shrine activities, Eastern Star and Daughters of the Nile.

Col. and Mrs. Mealka assisted in the organization of Lincoln's Twins Parents Club, and Mrs. Mealka was a charter member of a newly-organized Exemplar Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority. Both have served as officers for General Arnold PTA, and Mrs. Mealka has been active in the Great Books discussion series and in the Aksarben Toastmistress Club.

The Mealkas also are enthusiastic members of the Nebraska unit of the Wally Byam (trailer) Caravan Club and will pack up the trailer at the drop of a hat and take off with the children for a family holiday. In fact, the five Mealkas probably know more about the state of Nebraska, its parks and historical spots, than native Nebraskans.

Mrs. Charles Lindgren was hostess to the members of Delta Theta Chi when the group held its September meeting last Friday evening.

Mrs. Ralph Cole presented plans for the chapter's entry in the achievement contest which will be a feature of the Electra Province to be held in Lincoln on Oct. 18, 19 and 20. The achievement contest theme is "Our American Heritage in Living Pictures," and Lincoln's Alpha chapter has chosen "Nebraska is Our American Heritage" with Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Lindgren serving as entry co-chairmen.

A guest at the meeting was Dr. Irene Koehler of Nordenham, West Germany, who is the house guest of a University of Munich classmate, Miss Elfrieda Muennich.

Opening lead—ace of hearts.

Good card play would not be difficult if you could see all four hands. There would be very few deals where you could not find the best line of play, whether on offense or defense.

But unfortunately, or perhaps fortunately for the game of bridge, only the dummy hand is exposed during the play. The unseen cards are therefore a mystery to the three active players at the table, and the resultant task of deducing their whereabouts has a great deal to do with successful card play.

These deductions are often made only provisionally, but, even so, they are necessary.

The type of thinking they entail is illustrated in this hand played defensively by the twin brothers Bob and Jim Sharples, of England.

West (Bob Sharples) led the ace of hearts and shifted to a trump at trick two. Declarer cashed the A-K, and if he had found the normal 3-2 division in spades, he would have had an easy time making the contract.

But West showed out on the second spade and South could not now afford to draw the remaining trumps or he would wind up with only nine tricks. So, quite properly, he led a low club from dummy at trick four.

If East had played low on the trick, as would seem to be natural, declarer would have made the contract, but East went up with the king and returned his singleton diamond. South was helpless against this defense and eventually went down one. It did not matter whether he drew trumps at this point, or whether he led another club which would permit East to get a diamond ruff.

East based his defense on the assumption that West had the ace of clubs. He knew the contract could not be defeated if South had the ace, so he placed that card in West's hand. He could have been wrong in this assumption, of course, but he could lose nothing by making it.

Besides, Sharples wanted to live up to his name!

Q. "Would you please help me? I am 15 years old, weigh 145 pounds and am 5 feet, 2 inches tall. My measurements are: bust 34 inches; waist 29 inches; hips 35 inches.

"My mother tells me that I don't need to diet, only to exercise. I think I am overweight and have tried to diet, but I haven't the willpower to stick to a diet. I sent for your Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan, but it didn't help because I could not cut down on my calories.

"I am kind of shy and stay at home, watch TV and eat. Please help me lose weight. I can't go on a vacation until I do. I am too self-conscious."

A. You are in a rut which it will be difficult to get out of, but you CAN do it. However you are the ONLY one who can dig yourself out. I hope with my encouragement you will do so. Perhaps your mother was just being kind to you when she told you that you need not count calories or maybe she just does not know that it is absolutely essential that you do so. You cannot possibly lose all the weight you should without faithful calorie counting.

Yours is a typical picture. I hear from so many girls who are just like you, so you are not alone. You say, "I am kind of shy and stay at home." I think you yourself know, because you sound intelligent, that the reason you are shy and stay at home is because you are overweight and self-conscious about it. The reason you eat so much is because you are bored and the whole thing seems hopeless anyway.

Well, it isn't! You have a real thrill waiting for you if you will follow my instructions. Even allowing for a very large bony structure you should not weigh more than about 125 pounds. This may sound like a tremendous job. Don't try to do it suddenly. Leave off all desserts and between meal snacks, candy bars, rich dressings, gravy and take smaller helpings. Hold your calorie count to 1200 to 1400 a day and eat a well-balanced diet.

Also, do not stay at home and look at television. Make the first gesture toward friendship with those you know. You will be better able to avoid being self-conscious about your overweight if you KNOW that soon you will lose it and that these same folks will be telling you how wonderful you look. Keep this as your own little joke.

JFK Stumps For Resources

... SAYS U.S. MUST MOVE QUICKLY

Duluth, Minn. (AP)—President Kennedy said Tuesday night, in the heart of one of the nation's worst depressed areas, that the United States must move quickly toward saving both its natural and human resources.

Winding up his first day of a five-day trip in which the theme is conservation, Kennedy declared the northern Great Lakes region has unemployment twice the national average "which is itself too high."

The President said: "Waste of natural resources is tragic. But waste of human resources is disastrous."

Third Speech

The speech before the Northern Great Lakes Region Conference on Land and People was his third since he flew out of Washington Tuesday morning following Senate approval of the nuclear test ban treaty. He stopped first at Milford, Pa., then at Ashland, Wis.

He preached the doctrine that the nation must solve a crisis in its resources and its natural wonders.

"I am on a trip designed to direct attention to the crisis facing our natural resources—our fresh water, our soil, our forests and streams, our minerals, and even the air we breathe," Kennedy said.

"Every one of them faces the danger of destruction—and every one of them must be protected and conserved."

But at Milwaukee he turned also to the problem of people, asserting "our goal is the full employment of both the natural and human resources which this area still possesses in abundance."

Specifically, he said the effort to get the jobs must be done cooperatively, cutting across federal jurisdictions and state boundaries, and he insisted it must be joined by public agencies and private industries.

Took Tour

Before the Duluth appearance, the President took out several hours for a helicopter trip over Wisconsin's Apostle Island group nestling in Lake Superior. Preservation of the islands, or some of them, has been an aim of various conservation groups in the Midwest.

However, midway in the tour of the island chain, a thunderstorm forced a detour of the two helicopters carrying Kennedy and newsmen on the wing.

The party stopped at Ashland, a Lake Superior port, where a crowd of more than 5,000 gathered in the dusk to greet the President.

Among friends

Feeling he was among friends, Kennedy told the Ashland gathering:

"In an age of congestion and pollution, man-made noise and dirt," Kennedy said, "Lake Superior has a clear beauty that millions can enjoy."

Yet even here, the President said, troubles can bob up constantly. By accident, he said, millions of gallons of oil were dumped into the Minnesota River, bad news for ducks and other wildlife, to say nothing of man.

Kennedy said he's calling for an investigation, to be held in St. Paul, Jan. 28, to look into the problem.

Dedicated

Kennedy began his busy trip at Milford, Pa., where he dedicated the Pinchot Institute for Conservation Studies.

The institute is named for, and is the old home of the late Gifford Pinchot, a pioneer in saving forests and wildlife.

Around 10,000 spectators, many of them school children, were on hand in the beautiful tree-rimmed natural amphitheatre on the Pinchot estate.

Kennedy painted a grim picture of what modern civilization can do to us if we don't watch out. He said:

"Our industrial economy and urbanization are pressing against the limits of our most fundamental needs, pure water to drink, fresh air to breathe, open landscape to enjoy, and abundant sources of energy to release man from mental toil."

The President contended that conservation not only is of great concern at all levels of government, federal, state and local, but is or should be, the concern of each of us.

"It is not always the other fellow who pollutes the stream. It is not always the other fellow who litters the highways. The careless conduct of a single individual in a forest can destroy in one day the product of centuries," Kennedy said.

Davis And Wilson Picked To Design East High School

The architectural firm of Davis and Wilson was named to design the proposed Lincoln East High School at 74th and E, the largest structure planned by the Lincoln School Board, following the issuance of the $12.5 million school bond issue.

Other architects approved by the board to handle additions on the following schools were: Clark & Emerson, Olson, Burroughs & Thomsen, General Arnold School; Burkert E. Graf, May Morley School; Hazen & Robinson, Brownell School.

The board deferred any recommendation on architectural help for renovation of the Lincoln High School cafeteria area.

Wallace Told: Quit Interfering

Montgomery, Ala. (AP)—Gov. George Wallace was ordered Tuesday to stop interfering with court-ordered desegregation of public schools in Mobile, Birmingham and Tuskegee.

The judges acted after a lengthy hearing.

The order lists 13 specific acts from which Wallace is enjoined, including giving any support to his executive orders which had ordered the schools temporarily closed.

Sent Troopers

The governor had sent state troopers into the cities where desegregation had been ordered to enforce the executive orders and keep pupils out of the schools.

Wallace, Public Safety Director Al Lingo and others also are enjoined from failing to maintain law and order in such a manner that will not interfere with the schools remaining open.

The injunction also prohibits: Harassing or punishing students or teachers who attend desegregated schools.

Pickets Appear At North Platte, Work Continues

North Platte (AP)—Pickets appeared at the Central Nebraska Packing Company in North Platte Tuesday but about half the employees reported for work and operations of the plant continued. The United Packing House Workers have for several months been attempting to organize workers at the Central Nebraska plant, which processes dog food, and the North Platte Packing Plant, which processes meat for human consumption.

Kirk Mendenhall of North Platte, co-owner of the plants, said a negotiating session with union officials and government moderators is scheduled for Thursday.

Mendenhall said requests of the union would cost Central Nebraska about $150,000 a year.

Escapee Of Pen Caught At Home In South Sioux

South Sioux City (AP)—Darrell R. Anderson, a Nebraska Penitentiary trusty who walked off from a work detail at Grand Island on Sept. 4, was arrested at his home in South Sioux City Tuesday by Police Chief F. A. (Pete) Baumer and Assistant Chief Conrad Lindquist.

Darrell and his brother, Charles, both of whom were sentenced in District Court at Ponca to three to five years on breaking and entering charges, escaped from their quarters at the Grand Island Soldiers and Sailors Home, officers said.

Charles is still at large.

Wallace Told: Quit Interfering

Montgomery, Ala. (AP)—Gov. George Wallace was ordered Tuesday to stop interfering with court-ordered desegregation of public schools in Mobile, Birmingham and Tuskegee.

Five federal judges issued a preliminary injunction against the governor and other state officials. It was accepted by Wallace's attorney, John Kohn.

The judges acted after a lengthy hearing.

The order lists 13 specific acts from which Wallace is enjoined, including giving any support to his executive orders which had ordered the schools temporarily closed.

Sent Troopers

The governor had sent state troopers into the cities where desegregation had been ordered to enforce the executive orders and keep pupils out of the schools.

Wallace, Public Safety Director Al Lingo and others also are enjoined from failing to maintain law and order in such a manner that will not interfere with the schools remaining open.

The injunction also prohibits: Harassing or punishing students or teachers who attend desegregated schools.

NWU President's Reception Slated Thursday Evening

Students, friends and board members are invited to the reception from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the Campus Center.

President and Mrs. Vance Rogers, Dr. and Mrs. Sam Dahl, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Anderson of Omaha and Dr. and Mrs. Tom McCourt will greet guests.

Mr. Anderson is chairman of the Board.

The year's first major social event precedes the president's annual report Friday morning, when enrollment figures for the fall term will be revealed.

Dr. Rogers will make his report at 10 a.m. in the C. C. White Auditorium.

Hardin Sees Future NU Enrollment Of 20,000

Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin told members of the University of Nebraska faculty Tuesday evening that the institution they serve is growing into a major center of higher education.

A total enrollment of 20,000 or more within the near future is, he said, an approaching reality and one which the University and Nebraska must be prepared to accommodate.

The chancellor spoke to the traditional faculty homecoming dinner, held this year at the Nebraska Center and attended by about 400 staff members.

Accurate Estimate

He recalled a quotation from his address to a University of Nebraska faculty in 1955 when, he said, "we began to think quite seriously about expanded enrollments and the problems of expanded facilities and increased staff."

"Here is the direct quotation: 'On our own campuses during the early 1960's we very well may expect 12,000 students as compared with the present 7,600."

"This is 1963," the chancellor said, "and it now looks as though we did not overestimate our long-term rate of growth. We are still a little short of the 12,000 mark, but we are coming close."

In a review of the university record since 1955, the chancellor noted these developments:

- A near doubling of the university's current funds budget composed of total revenues—from $11.5 million to $21 million.
- Steady growth of graduate education.
- Construction of the Nebraska Center and inauguration of a growing program in continuing education.
- An appreciable reduction in the undergraduate dropout rate.
- Attraction of more of the state's top high school graduates. This year, he said, 51 of the state's top 100 spring high school graduates are enrolled at the University compared with 73 last year and lesser numbers earlier.

Better Relationships

- Improved working relationships with Nebraska high schools.
- Closer cooperation between the university and other Nebraska colleges and universities as demonstrated by the Nebraska College Teacher Development program operated by the university with support from the National Science Foundation.
- Participation in international educational programs through university operations in Turkey and an exchange agreement with El Colegio de Mexico.
- Early participation and subsequent state leadership in educational television.
- Further development of a Nebraska medical center served by the College of Medicine and the Eppley Institute for Cancer Research.

Chancellor Hardin expressed "gratitude that the Legislature is beginning to recognize the need for faculty salary adjustments as related to quality."

"This recognition," he said, "suggests that we are beginning to get the answer many of us have awaited . . . the answer that Nebraska really wants a first-rate university and that with time and work and patience, it shall have it."

Lincoln Attorney C. E. Barney Will Head State Dimes Drive

Lincoln attorney and civic leader Chauncey E. Barney will serve as the Nebraska chairman for the January March of Dimes campaign, according to National President Basil O'Connor of New York City.

The 48-year-old head of a local law firm will organize and coordinate the work of thousands of Nebraska volunteers during the Jan. 2-31 campaign to raise funds for medical care of those afflicted with birth defects or with arthritis, and to support research into the cause and cure of these crippling conditions.

In announcing Barney's appointment, the president of the nation's largest voluntary health organization noted that Nebraska ranked fifth in the nation in per capita giving to the March of Dimes last January.

Barney, whose interest in the March of Dimes dates to his leadership in the 1947 Lancaster County Campaign, said it would be "a privilege to be so closely identified with the March of Dimes."

He called attention to the fact that pending the day of victory through research, since 70 March of Dimes Special Treatment and Clinical Study Centers have been established across the nation for birth defect and arthritis patients.

"In Nebraska, our county chapters are pooling their resources to support such centers . . . the March of Dimes Birth Defects Center is at Children's Memorial Hospital in Omaha, and the other, the Special Arthritis and Polio Treatment Center, is at St. Joseph's Hospital in Omaha," he said.

The campaign in Nebraska will coincide with the national drive.

Lincoln Base 'Buttons Up' For Exercise

Lincoln Air Force Base "buttoned up" Tuesday in a simulated nuclear attack exercise called "Great Effort."

Base personnel said that although the official evaluation of the exercise has not been made, the test run "was, from all outward appearances, a success."

Base personnel and families living in base housing areas took part in the 12-hour drill. Base gates were closed to all except emergency traffic. Simulated counterattacks against "enemy" forces were launched.

The exercise began at 6 a.m. Base commissary store, exchange, service station, library, service clubs and dry cleaning office were closed.

The exercise was a test to see if LAFB could survive an all-out nuclear attack.

Emphasis in the test was on getting personnel to shelter and on fire-fighting outfits' reaction to attack situation, a base spokesman said.

WISHING WELL By William J. Miller

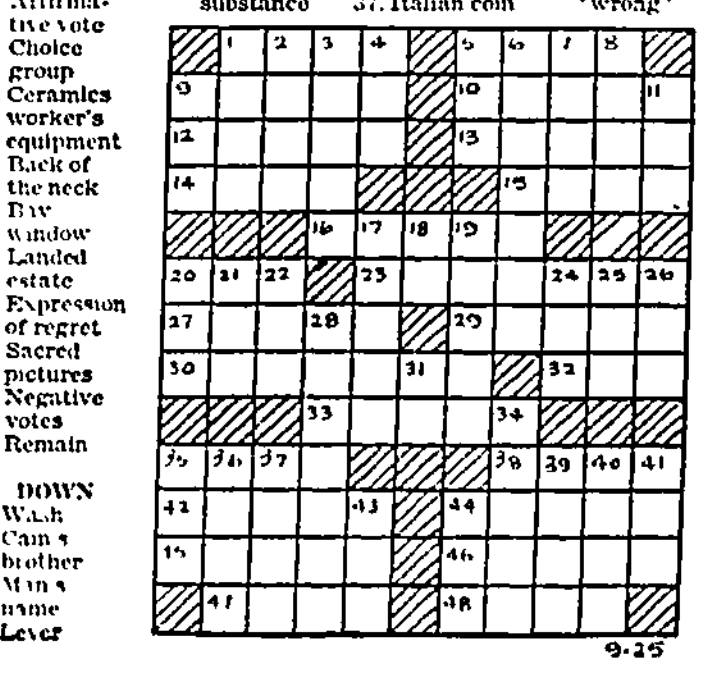

Here is a practical little game, but with a twist: you can win every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to win, but you must follow a few rules. In your first name (if the number of letters is 4, subtract 4; if the number is less than 4, add three). The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every second letter, moving left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. DODGERS WIN NATIONAL LEAGUE FLAG

Los Angeles' Celebration Is Subdued

Los Angeles (UPI) — Without lifting a bat or throwing a pitch, the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday backed into the National League championship thanks to the Chicago Cubs defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 6-3 in a day game at Chicago.

With the Dodgers scheduled to play a night game against the New York Mets, not a player was in Dodger Stadium to let out a cheer as the club clinched its 14th league pennant and second since it moved to Los Angeles in 1958.

In the Dodgers' executive offices on the club level of the 56,000-seat stadium officials of the organization, secretaries and other employees let loose with a few mild cheers, shook hands and told each other, "We've won it."

The players, manager Walt Alston and the Dodgers coaching staff normally do not start arriving at the stadium until around 4 p.m., PDT, (5 p.m. CST) when the club is playing a night game. But at home they were listening to radio programs which carried a full ball and strike account of the game 2,000 miles away.

Alston said he tuned in the radio report of the final inning of the Cubs-Cardinals game at Chicago and was delighted that the regular season battle had come to an end so far as the pennant was concerned.

"Give the credit to the players; they won it," Alston said. "But I'm real happy with the pennant victory. Now we can look ahead to the World Series."

Alston said he would leave it up to his top pitchers to help him decide if they should work in their regular rotations in the remaining six games of the regular season.

Alston said he also would not stand in the way of his star southpaw, Sandy Koufax, who has 24 victories, if he wants to try for a 25th win.

Bars and restaurants erupted with whooping shouts as the loss by the Cardinals was announced through broadcasts arranged by local radio stations.

All-American Bids

A number of factors enter into the selection of all-American football teams each year.

One of the biggest boosts for a prospective athlete comes from reams of publicity handed out by the sports information director at the school involved. Many all-Americans have been built in a mimeograph machine rather than on the sod of a football field.

Another consideration is whether the candidate has played on a winning team.

A third factor is the athlete's performance in key games on the schedule, games that are viewed by sports writers from the major metropolitan centers of the country.

This third factor will be in effect Saturday at Minneapolis when the Huskers take on Minnesota. Such an inter-sectional game attracts more nation-wide attention than most games within the Big Eight Conference itself.

Best Husker Bets

Nebraska's best bets for all-American honors ride with quarterback Dennis Claidge, guard Bob Brown and tackle Lloyd Voss.

Claidge, although easily the outstanding quarterback in the Big Eight, has about as much chance of making it as a dachshund has of getting through a revolving door.

The Husker quarterback is currently playing among one of the top quarterbacks crops in history with many outstanding signal callers in uniform this year.

Voss may be the outstanding lineman in the Husker camp and will be among the top picks in the pro draft next winter, but the Husker from Minnesota has not had the pre-season ballyhoo necessary to become an all-American.

This leaves Brown as the best Husker bet. The mammoth lineman has had a pre-season buildup and has the selectors looking his way. His performance at Minnesota Saturday could be the key.

Brown will be compared with Minnesota's Carl Eller, who is nearly a cinch all-American, and if the Husker guard shows well while on the same field with the large Gopher tackle, he'll be given strong consideration when the selectors mark their ballots.

'Best Tackle In Country'

Eller, who stands 6-5½ and weighs in at 241, was named to the Big 10 second team last season and was overshadowed by everybody's all-America tackle Bobby Bell.

This year with Bell gone, Eller has no shadows and Minnesota coach Murray Warmath calls him the best tackle in college football.

The Huskers' Thunder Thornton is a good example of what a top-notch performance in a Big 10 game can do. Thornton had one of his better days against Michigan and this was probably the key reason for mention he received by the all-American selectors, many of whom probably did not even know he was injured most of the season.

While the writers covering the Minnesota-Nebraska game will have one eye on the scoreboard, the other eye will be zeroed in on Bob Brown and Carl Eller.

8 High Schools In Cross Country

Eight high schools will run Friday afternoon in the second Annual Nebraska Wesleyan University High School Cross Country Invitational.

Competing will be Lincoln Northeast, Lincoln Southeast, Lincoln High, Omaha South, Omaha Westside, Hastings, Kearney and Grand Island.

Kearney is defending champion.

Wide Open Offense Expected

By JIAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska's gridders are preparing for the unexpected in Saturday's game with Minnesota, Husker coach Bob Devaney said Tuesday.

"It is difficult to prepare for the game because we don't know much about their squad," Devaney noted. "But we feel that anyone that has four weeks to get ready for a ball game will come up with something different."

Past Gopher teams have stressed a ground attack and have generally stayed away from wide plays and passing except when Sandy Stephens was at quarterback.

"They basically have been a team that leans more to power running, but we feel they may try to build their attack for us around a more wide open game with passes and wide running plays," the Husker coach said.

"With this in mind we are working this week on a defense for that type of offense," Devaney continued.

"They are supposed to be faster this year and we understand that their No. 1 quarterback, Bob Sadek, is a capable passer."

Devaney sent the Huskers through a short controlled offensive scrimmage Tuesday in addition to working on punt returns and punt protection. A limited defensive scrimmage is on tap for today.

The Huskers will fly to Minneapolis Friday noon with a 40-man squad. A workout is scheduled for the Gophers Stadium Friday afternoon. Headquarters for the NU squad in Minneapolis is the Curtis Hotel Friday night and the team will return home Saturday after the game.

Two opponents will be scouted by NU assistants Saturday with John Melton and King Block watching the Air Force in its game with Colorado State. Cletus Fischer will scout Iowa State against VMI at Ames.

Gophers Practice In Light Drizzle

Minneapolis (AP) — Just in case they need it against the Nebraska Cornhuskers, the Minnesota Gophers got in their rain practice outdoors Tuesday instead of retreating to the fieldhouse.

Although the turf was slippery, the Gophers got by without any injuries while drilling on Nebraska's offensive and defensive football patterns.

Conerly Innocent Of Accusations

. . . DIDN'T GAMBLE, INQUIRY SHOWS

New York (AP) — The National Football League, after an extensive investigation, Tuesday absolved former New York Giants quarterback Charley Conerly of any wrongdoing in his financial dealings with a Memphis man accused of gambling.

"Conerly is and always has been a credit to the National Football League," the NFL said in a statement.

In Clarksdale, Miss., Conerly greeted the statement with relief and some bitterness.

"It was a terrible experience," he said. "I'm mighty happy it's all over with. The whole thing probably wouldn't have happened if they'd have asked my side of the story but they went ahead and printed it. Actually, it was more a misunderstanding than anything else—but it was real embarrassing to me and my wife."

The NFL statement said its investigations showed that checks given to Conerly by Maurice J. Lewis, indicted in January on football gambling charges were to cover personal loans and had no connection with gambling.

The investigation was conducted in Clarksdale, Miss., Conerly's home, and in Memphis, by Jim Hamilton, chief investigator for the league. The statement was issued by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Facts Available
The statement said the facts on the Conerly case were readily available to the NFL, "and to any one else wishing to obtain more than surface information."

The statement said it is "most unfortunate complete information was not reported when Conerly's name appeared in public print last Friday."

Conerly retired from football following the 1961 season, after 14 years as the quarterback of the Giants. He was a college player at Mississippi.

The report concerning the cancelled checks written by Conerly and found in Lewis' financial records appeared Friday in a copyright story by the Memphis Press-Scimitar. Rozelle sent Hamilton to Conerly's home in Clarksdale to investigate last weekend.

Meanwhile, Conerly insisted to the Memphis Commercial-Appeal that his financial records would prove the checks were for repayment of loans.

"Obvious"

The statement said the conclusions reached from the investigation were "obvious."

It listed them:

likened and respected in the Memphis-Clarksdale area."

"Conerly was one of several highly respected individuals from whom Lewis borrowed money."

"Conerly is and always has been a credit to the National Football League."

Chicago Deals SL Last Blow

. . . LA WINS, 4-1

By Associated Press
"Anybody who says we backed into the pennant missed our five games last week."

So said pitcher Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who became champions of the National League Tuesday without lifting a bat or throwing a pitch.

The Dodgers officially clinched their first National League pennant since 1959 when the Chicago Cubs knocked off second-place St. Louis 6-3 in a day game, handing the Cardinals their sixth consecutive loss and eliminating the Redbirds from contention.

The Cardinals had been all but out of the race since Wednesday night when the Dodgers completed a sweep of a three game series at St. Louis and built a four-game lead. The end for the Cardinals came in the eighth inning as Ron Santo cracked a two-run single for the Cubs and snapped a 3-3 tie.

The Dodgers' champagne celebration waited until after they put the finishing touches on things by defeating the New York Mets 4-1 in a night game behind the four-hit pitching of Don Drysdale and Ron Perranoski.

The American League champion New York Yankees fielded their regular starting lineup—Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Co.—for the first time since June 5 and displayed their World Series form with an 8-1 bombing of the Los Angeles Angels.

Elston Howard led the Yankees' attack against Bo Belinsky, belting a three-run triple in the first inning that gave Whitey Ford more than enough to grab his 24th victory with Ralph Terry's ninth inning relief help.

In other AL action, Ron Hansen collected 3 singles, 3 walks and 3 runs batted in as the Chicago White Sox walked Baltimore and 20-game winner Steve Barber (5-0, Joe Arzene hit two homers in Cleveland's 5-1 victory over Minnesota. Don Wert's homer gave Detroit a 1-0 decision over Washington and Boston defeated Kansas City 5-1.

Jim Maloney won his 23rd game and struck out 11 in his seven-inning stint while Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson supplied homers in Cincinnati's 4-2 triumph over Milwaukee.

In two other NL night games, Houston defeated Pittsburgh 3-2 as Chris Zachary and Hal Woodeshick combined on a four-hitter, and Philadelphia edged San Francisco 5-3 on John Herrnstein's first major league homer, a pinch-hit job with two out in the ninth inning.

McKeever Signs
Los Angeles (AP) — Marlin McKeever, linebacker for the Los Angeles Rams, signed his 1963 contract Tuesday.

Arakawa Gets Salty Victory

Rocky Hamilton's challenge match with Mitsun Arakawa was just short of success by a pinch Tuesday night in the Pershing Auditorium in a show.

A pinch of salt to be exact. The match was even at one fall apiece and Hamilton had the Oriental grappler in trouble on the ropes when Arakawa splashed a handful of salt in Rocky's eyes.

With Hamilton blinded by the salt, Arakawa had little trouble in applying his pet hold, the stomach claw to subdue Rocky.

The match had been set up two weeks ago when Hamilton challenged the winner of the Arakawa-Waldo Von Erich match.

Hamilton won the first fall Tuesday night with an atomic drop and lost the second when Arakawa applied a judo chop with Rocky coming off the ropes.

Jean Antone won two of three falls from Ann Regan to take the semifinal match, a battle of the gals.

Don Whittier applied two flying body slams to whip Harley Race in the opening bout and Guy Mitchell grappled to a draw with Jim Grabmure in the other match.

—BEAVER CROSSING SECOND— Axtell Tops 8-Man Ratings

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Axtell heads the list of Nebraska eight-man football teams this week after scoring a come-from-behind 26-20 upset win over previous leader Amherst.

The loss tumbled Amherst to the No. 9 spot in the ratings. Moving up as the No. 2 team is Beaver Crossing, which blanked Western, last week's No. 3 team, 26-0.

Palisade, a 6-0 winner over Haigler on a soggy field, drops from second to third.

High scoring Maywood and Odell, which has the longest winning streak in 8-man ranks (13), round out the first division.

Unbeaten powers Oakdale, Winnebago and Sumner are challenging for recognition and head the second division.

Amherst and Western remain in the top ten, but another loss for either team would kill its chances of moving up again.

Challengers—Paxton (3-0), Chadron Assumption (3-0) and Malcolm (2-0) are the best of the remaining unbeaten teams. Walthill (2-1) just missed this week.

Comment—Top positions can still undergo a lot of changes. Axtell came from behind to knock off Amherst, last week's leader.

Axtell Tops 8-Man Ratings

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

Axtell heads the list of Nebraska eight-man football teams this week after scoring a come-from-behind 26-20 upset win over previous leader Amherst.

Moving up as the No. 2

team is Beaver Crossing, which blanked Western, last week's No. 3 team, 26-0.

Palisade, a 6-0 winner over Haigler on a soggy field, drops from second to third. High scoring Maywood and Odell, which has the longest winning streak in 8-man ranks (13), round out the first division.

Unbeaten powers Oakdale, Winnebago and Summer are challenging for recognition and head the second division. Amherst and Western remain in the top ten, but another loss for either team would kill its chances of moving up again.

Overall class rankings of high school football teams, based on season's performances.

By Don Forsythe

Eight Man

- 1—Axtell (3-0)
- 2—Beaver Crossing (3-0)
- 3—Palisade (3-0)
- 4—Maywood (3-0)
- 5—Odell (3-0)
- 6—Oakdale (3-0)
- 7—Winnebago (3-0)
- 8—Summer (3-0)
- 9—Amherst (2-1)
- 10—Western (2-1)

Challengers—Paxton (3-0) and Malcolm (2-0) are the best of the remaining unbeaten teams. Walthill (2-1) just missed this week.

Comment—Top positions can still undergo a lot of changes. Axtell came from behind to knock off Amherst, last week's leader.

STUDENTS PURSUE TICKETS

Many University of Nebraska students spent a good deal of time Tuesday standing in two lines waiting to receive their student football tickets for the Husker home games. The student ticket sales increased so greatly this fall that it was necessary for the NU ticket staff to sell some bleacher seats at a reduced rate.

O'Shea Takes Match

Omaha (UPI) — Brian O'Shea, 22-year-old Minneapolis light heavyweight, hammered out a split decision tonight over another young fighter, Chino Diaz of San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Referee Bill Engel scored it 99-97 for O'Shea and Judge Harry Parnham scored it 98-96 for O'Shea. Judge Gene Buzzello scored a draw at 93-90.

O'Shea, a protégé of former middleweight champion Tony Zale, stung Diaz with crisp left jabs and sharp hooks off the jabs. But Diaz, always ready to mix, staggered O'Shea nearly halfway across the ring with only minutes to go in the fight, and O'Shea had to rally to shake off the effects of the blow.

Hernandez, formerly of Sydney but now fighting out of Omaha, weighed in at 155 pounds.

After referee Gene Buzzello stepped between the two, Davis unleashed some of his scariest punches of the evening in refusing to accept the decision. He was finally restrained by Buzzello and his handlers. He was talked into leaving the ring, but only after he traded a few more punches with Hernandez following the fight.

Sam Giancola of Chicago stopped John McLeod of Grand Rapids, Mich., by a knockout in the third round of their scheduled four-round featherweight fight.

In a heavyweight match, Lou Bailey, weighing 170, defeated Chien Gardner of Chicago in a five-round bout.

Rough and tough Rory O'Shea of Minneapolis uncorked a savage right to stop Ray Terry of Chicago in the third round of their scheduled six-round welterweight fight.

Seven hundred and thirty-six persons paid to see the fight.

Dunkel Lists Crimson Tide In Top Spot

By DICK DUNKEL

Alabama, 32-7 winner over Georgia last Saturday, is the current college football leader according to the Dunkel Index.

In re-assessing the No. 1 role which it held longer than any other team during the last two seasons, the Crimson Tide now shows a scoring margin of 25.0 over opposition index of 89.0 for the top total of 114.0.

The next three on the major list also won Saturday openers as follows:

Rank	Team	Record	Margin	Index
2	West Virginia	41-0	24.0	109.0

Heavy Rain Brightens British Net Hopes In Cup Play

Bournemouth, Eng. — Heavy rain washed out practice for the United States and British tennis teams Tuesday and raised British hopes of an upset in the weekend Davis Cup Interzone semifinal match.

The downpour further slowed up the red shale courts, which normally are slower than clay courts in the United States.

Bob Kelleher, non-playing U.S. captain, acknowledged that the slower courts probably would help the British, but he was not discouraged.

"I don't care much for theories in tennis," the tall Los Angeles attorney said. "It's the best player of the day who wins the match."

The Americans hope that Wimbledon champion Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston will be the better men Thursday when the opening singles matches are scheduled.

McKinley, from San Antonio, Tex., and Ralston, from Bakersfield, Calif., were expected to carry the full singles and doubles load although the Americans have good reserve strength. If needed, Frank Froehling III of Coral Gables, Fla., runner-up to Rafael Osuna of Mexico in the U.S. national championships earlier this month, can be used, if need be, as can Martin Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and Gene Scott of St. James, N.Y.

The British line-up is uncertain but most observers believe captain Duncan Macauley will use Mike Sangster and left-handed Billy Knight in singles with Sangster and Bobby Wilson playing doubles. The doubles are scheduled Friday with the final singles Saturday.

The winner of match here must meet India in Bombay in November for the right to challenge Australia for the trophy in late December.

WHEEL WON'T GIVE UP
Car 59 itself got to a halt when a wheel came off on the Columbus, Wis., Speedway track but the wheel refused to give up, continuing on around the track alone (dotted line) until it appeared to be challenging car No. 5 for position.

Lincoln Teachers Are Asked To Help Free School Assn.

Lincoln public school teachers will be asked to contribute to support of the Prince Edward County (Va.) Free School Association.

The free will offering, sponsored by the Lincoln Education Association, will go to help support the operation of the private schools in the county for 17,000 children — mostly Negro — who have been without schooling for several years.

The drive for funds started with the National Education Association, of which the LEA is an affiliate. The NEA also aided the Department of Justice and U.S. Education Office in selecting teachers for the private school system.

Some of the children in Prince Edward county are now 11 and 12 without having had enough schooling to be able to read and write. The public schools in the county were closed in 1959.

Hruska To Speak At Insurance Convention

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., will be featured speaker Oct. 2 at the 67th annual convention of the National Association of Insurance Agents in Chicago, the Nebraska association reported.

A breakfast meeting with Sen. Hruska has been arranged by the Nebraska delegation to the convention, expected to number about 40 persons.

Hruska is a member of the Senate anti-trust subcommittee which has held extensive hearings on insurance matters.

Bid Lettings Not Requirement For Hospital Boards

It is not necessary for a county hospital board to advertise for bids before approving a contract to equip the hospital, according to an attorney general's opinion released Tuesday.

"Inasmuch as there appears to be no constitutional or statutory requirement that the purchase of county hospital equipment must be done through contract awarded by the method of public letting, it is our opinion that a county hospital board of trustees may enter into a contract with one or more supply firms for the purchase of hospital equipment, without public letting," the opinion said.

Requested by John R. Sullivan of Ord, Valley County attorney, the opinion was written by Assistant Atty. Gen. C. C. Sheldon and approved by Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer.

Fertilizer Gain Big

New York — One person in 10, it is estimated, is nourished on the additional crop yields that chemical fertilizer has created. By the end of this century the proportion may be much higher as chemical-fertilizer consumption continues to increase at the rate of 10% a year.

U.S. Grain Enterprisers Negotiating With Reds

Minneapolis — A team of American private grain traders is negotiating now in Canada for a huge sale of this country's wheat to the Russians.

The Minneapolis Tribune and Des Moines Register said in a copyrighted story Tuesday night that approval of the U.S. government was all that remained before a deal could be closed.

The Tribune said it had learned that the administration thus far has had no part in the negotiations, but that the White House, State, Commerce and Agriculture Departments had been working on the legal, technical and policy problems involved.

From Duluth, where President Kennedy was speaking Tuesday night, came word that there would be no immediate White House comment.

The American traders are reported talking with the commission, headed by S. A. Borsov, first deputy minister of Russian trade, which recently bought a half billion dollars worth of wheat from Canada.

Grain men in Ottawa for the talks were listed by the Tribune as Leopold Stern, director of the Louis Dreyfus Corp., New York, and the following trio from Minneapolis: Burton Joseph, president of U.S. Joseph, Inc.; Charles Ritz, board chairman of International Milling Co., and Ralph Bruce, a vice president of Archer Daniels Midland Co.

Other grain and milling firms were reported watching the talks closely.

Act Together

The Tribune said it was learned that the "exporters" group were moving under existing laws to form a corporation enabling them to act together in such a sale. The corporation, taking responsibility for such necessary items as contracts and performance bonds, would sell shares to any American firms wishing to participate, with allocation of shipments to be worked out among themselves.

The newspapers said the sale to crop-short Russia would be far harder currency, should the deal go through. The Russians are paying for the Canadian grain in dollars.

If the U.S. government gives approval to this sale, the deal would have important effects far beyond the purely agricultural field," said the story by Charles W. Bailey.

Bailey wrote that it could lead to a change of policy to increased utilization rather than production controls in this country as well as a possible partial answer to the troublesome balance of payments and gold reserve problems.

The story added, however, that there would be important political consideration for the Kennedy administration involved.

"Such a sale certainly would produce complaints, especially from members of Congress representing constituencies with large numbers of voters of Eastern European extraction," Bailey wrote. "These groups in the past consistently have opposed any trading with Communist nations."

But, against this, the Tribune reported trial balloons sent up from Washington "seemed to indicate a shift in sentiment, with a good deal more favorable comment than in the past."

Home Starts Slump

Washington — Only 78,000 homes were started last year under the Veterans Administration housing program compared with 393,000 in 1955.

STEALING . . . leaves Fred Haney just pennies.

Life Of Crime Worth Two Cents

Miami, Fla. — Two cents. This is the only remaining capital I have left to show for 49 years of stealing," said Fred Harrison Haney, who has spent half of his 62 years in prisons.

But his words weren't bitter. "It's too late now," Haney said Tuesday as he waited in Dade County Jail for deputies to take him back to Texas.

Haney, a man listed as a fugitive, could pass for any youngster's grandfather. This time, he's wanted for failing to report for parole.

Haney was released from a Texas prison last May after serving part of a 99-year sentence for a Fort Worth, Tex., robbery in 1931.

"I wanted to see things I haven't seen for some time," Haney said, so he set out from Dallas, despite parole restrictions on travel.

Hitchhiking from town to town, the white-haired Texan worked at odd jobs whenever he found a place he liked.

"I worked eight days in Scranton, Pa.," said Haney. "I'm too old to steal anymore."

Visits to war memorials at Gettysburg, Pa., and Harper's Ferry, W.Va., were the most inspiring parts of his tour, he said.

Haney said he was 19 when he was arrested in Huntsville, Ala., for burglary. He said he set fire to the jail and escaped, but was caught and sent to prison for 10 years.

"One night when it was raining hard I decided to break out," Haney said. "I ran 17 miles in the mud."

Haney had served 10 years of his Texas sentence, when in 1941 he received a medical reprieve so he could undergo surgery for a bullet wound in the head, received in an escape attempt.

Instead of going back, Haney signed up with a World War II construction crew and went to the Pacific.

Seven years later, he was picked up in Indianapolis and returned to Texas to resume serving his sentence.

Haney appeared before Circuit Judge James Kehoe, waived extradition and said he wanted to go back. He said he hoped after serving some time he could get his 99-year term commuted and be given a full pardon.

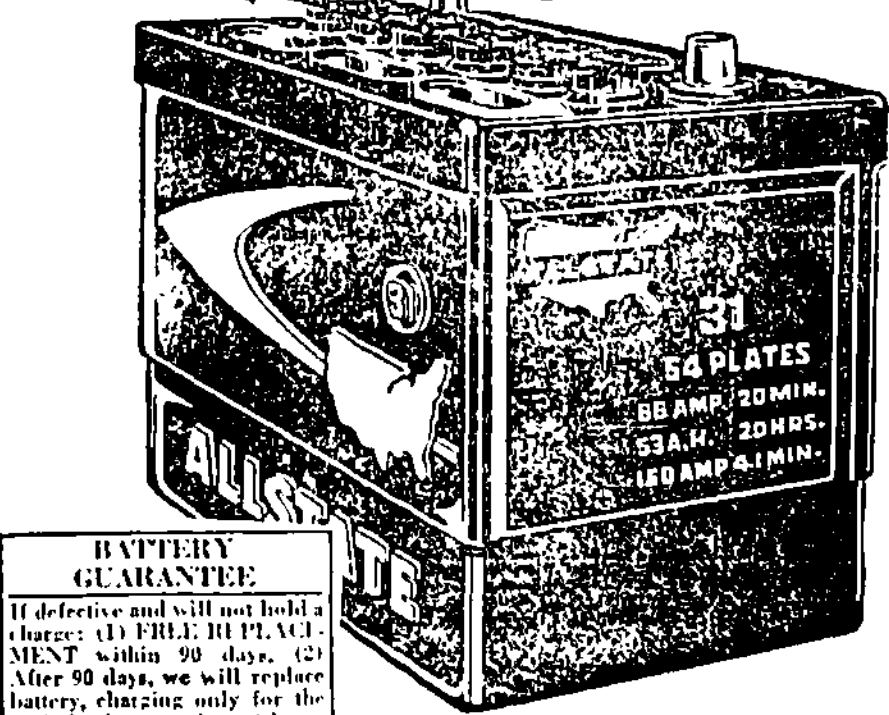

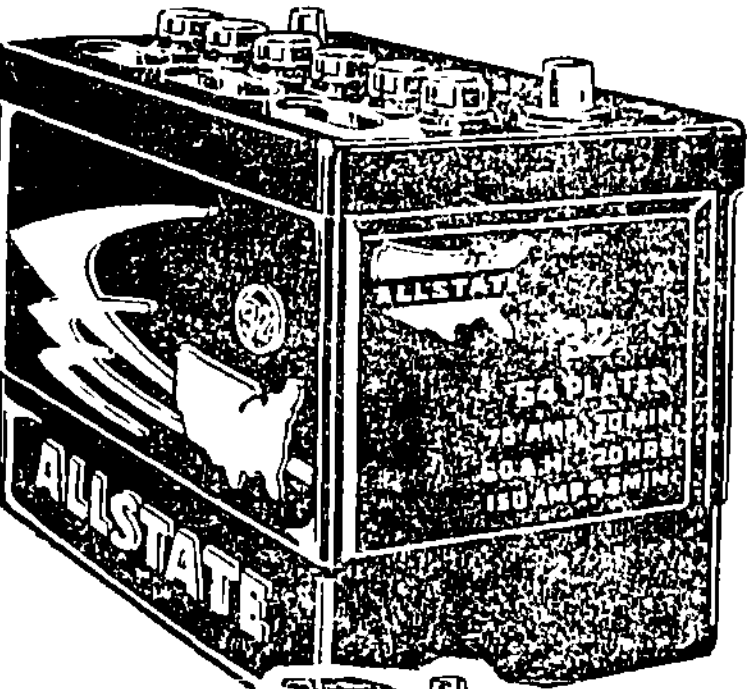

"My only remaining wish in life," Haney said, "is to get straightened out with the law and be able to die on the outside."

Haney arrived in Miami last Wednesday and spent the night in a skid row mission. The next day he decided to turn himself in.

At the county jail's personal property window, Haney pulled two cents out of his pocket.

POSTCARD

Every conqueror of Mexico has struggled up the rugged cordillera, from steamy Vera Cruz to the thin air of Mexico City.

"In compliance with our requisition, 50 of the principal Totonacan warriors attended us and also 200 men to draw our guns. And thus we set out from Cempoal in the month of August 1519, our army in good order and patrols of cavalry and light infantry in front. Our first day's march was to a town named Jalapa."

So begins the great eye-witness account of the conquest by the soldier Bernal Diaz del Castillo.

The sun and warm weather have come back to Mexico. It was a spring day at Jalapa, a two-hour drive from Vera Cruz but already more than 4,000 feet above sea level. Across the staggering peaks

Every conqueror of Mexico has struggled up the rugged cordillera, from steamy Vera Cruz to the thin air of Mexico City.

In compliance with our requisition, 50 of the principal Tononacan warriors attended us and also 200 men to draw our guns. And thus we set out from Cempoal in the month of August 1519, our army in good order and patrols of cavalry and light infantry in front. Our first day's march was to a town named Jalapa."

So begins the great eye-witness account of the conquest by the soldier Bernal Diaz del Castillo.

CARMICHAEL

and barrancas, you could see the great snowy peak of Orizaba in the blue Mexican sky.

The new road follows, intersects and cuts around the old cobbled, guttered road the Spanish used for three centuries. It is loaded with history.

At Cerro Gordo on April 12, 1847, Scott's Regulars drove off the Mexican lancers of Santa Anna.

Off the road above Jalapa is the town of Venta de Lencero, a spire of the church tower rising above the village. Diaz remembers a fellow soldier of the Conquest:

"Lencero, a good soldier, had an inn on the road to Vera Cruz, turned friar."

At 8,000 feet, I stopped for gas at Perote where they sell a sugary candy. Across the town is the squat stone fortress of San Carlos de Perote.

Somewhere beyond here in the Tlasealan mountains, the Spanish conquistadors grew faint-hearted. Four snow-capped volcanoes are in sight and the pine hills jump straight up from the sandy plains covered with spiked blue-green maguey plants.

A number of them wanted to return to Vera Cruz. Said Cortez:

"It is better instead of reaping to look forward and leave all to be guided by the hand of God."

"As to our return, it is true that the natives we have left behind are now friendly. But if we seemed to retreat, the very stones would rise against us."

"Therefore, gentlemen, thus it is: bad there, worse elsewhere. Better stay as you are, here in a plentiful country, and as to what you say of losses, deaths and fatigues, such is the fortune of war, and we did not come here in search of pastimes and amusements."

The Mexican highlands are majestic in the sunlight. One of Scott's officers wrote home: "The soldiers marched often in silence, awed by their surroundings."

The roads were full of buses. Bus travel is cheap and plentiful in Mexico now. Some 20 years ago, the Indians seldom got more than 10 miles from their villages. Now they pack into the buses and go booming down the highways.

And on a warm afternoon, I drove over the pass into the Valley of Mexico. Flat, filled with traffic, and every plaza full of business and music. Once it held two great lakes around the Aztec city. But now it is drained, salt-edged. The winds blow dust clouds. It must have been magnificent when Bernal Diaz topped the pass and remembered in his journal:

"When I behold the scenes that were around me, I thought within myself that this was the garden of the world. But all is destroyed and that which was a lake is now a field of corn, and so altered that the natives themselves would hardly know it."

Police Arrest Negroes In Selma, Ala., Rioting

Selma, Ala. (AP) — Nearly 100 Negroes were arrested Tuesday on charges of unlawful assembly as they attempted a pair of demonstrations.

Officers arrested 25 pupils for playing hooky and also took two members of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee into custody.

The demonstrators—mostly teenagers—left a church where they had been gathered and started downtown. They stopped along the way and knelt and started singing and clapping.

Sheriff Shouts
Sheriff Jim Clark shouted over a portable public address system: "You are all under arrest for unlawful assembly."

The Negroes were loaded on buses and taken to jail. They offered no resistance and law enforcement officers used no force.

State troopers, waiting across town, were alerted for the first time in midafternoon. They arrived at the scene in about 30 cars and helped clear crowds of curious white persons and another group of Negroes. One Negro was arrested when he refused to leave.

During the morning several students escaped arrest by running before officers lined up the group demonstrating on Broad St. and ordered them to halt. Those remaining were arrested without incident and loaded into a bus.

They were charged with unlawful assembly.

Arrests at Church
Earlier, officers arrested Bennett Lee Tucker, 23, and Worth Long, 27, of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee, at the Negro First Baptist Church.

Tucker was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, a charge which Sheriff James Clark said involved encouraging students to stay out of school.

Long was charged with interfering with an officer attempting to serve a warrant.

Both gave Selma addresses and were held under $2,500 bond.

Negroes have staged repeated anti-segregation demonstrations here and as many as 200 gathered at various times Tuesday at the Baptist Church.

Police Surveillance

Approximately 25 more Negro students were arrested Tuesday under the state truancy law in the wake of 26 arrests Monday.

School-age children found on the street were given the choice of going to school or facing arrest. Those arrested were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Clark said the pupils were not bothered while they were on church property or inside the church but were questioned when they reached the street and ordered to go to school or face arrest.

He said 431 Negro pupils were absent Tuesday from Hudson School.

Mrs. Popovich First
Moscow (AP)—Marina Popovich, wife of Soviet Cosmonaut Pavel Popovich, and an accomplished stunt pilot, has become the first woman admitted to the Leningrad Aviation Academy, the newspaper Izvestia reports. She is expected to have a professional career as a pilot but not necessarily as a space pilot.

NOT ANOTHER ONE!!!

The Portland Ore. zoo got its fourth baby elephant in 18 months. The birth of the first one in April, 1962 was the first to survive in the U.S. in more than 40 years. Here the ponderous mother Tuv Hoa wraps her trunk protectively around the new calf, left, a bleary eyed not so little female. The smaller elephant right was born last week to Pet and weighed 155 pounds. They're both offspring of the bull Thonglaw. Neither of the new arrivals have names yet. The first two were named Paaky and Me-Tu.

Police Arrest Negroes In Selma, Ala., Rioting

Selma, Ala. (AP) — Nearly 100 Negroes were arrested Tuesday on charges of unlawful assembly as they attempted a pair of demonstrations.

Officers arrested 25 pupils for playing hooky and also took two members of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee into custody.

The demonstrators—mostly teen-agers—left a church where they had been gathered and started downtown. They stopped along the way and knelt and started singing and clapping.

Sheriff Shouts
Sheriff Jim Clark shouted over a portable public address system: "You are all under arrest for unlawful assembly."

The Negroes were loaded on buses and taken to jail. They offered no resistance and law enforcement officers used no force.

State troopers, waiting across town, were alerted for the first time in midafternoon. They arrived at the scene in about 30 cars and helped clear crowds of curious white persons and another group of Negroes. One Negro was arrested when he refused to leave.

During the morning several students escaped arrest by running before officers lined up the group demonstrating on Broad St. and ordered them to halt. Those remaining were arrested without incident and loaded into a bus. They were charged with unlawful assembly.

Arrests at Church
Earlier, officers arrested Bennett Lee Tucker, 23, and Worth Long, 27, of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee, at the Negro First Baptist Church.

Tucker was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, a charge which Sheriff James Clark said involved encouraging students to stay out of school.

Long was charged with interfering with an officer attempting to serve a warrant.

Both gave Selma addresses and were held under $2,500 bond.

Negroes have staged repeated anti-segregation demonstrations here and as many as 200 gathered at various times Tuesday at the Baptist Church.

City police and sheriff's deputies watched the church to guard against possible trouble and to watch for school-age children cutting classes.

Approximately 25 more Negro students were arrested Tuesday under the state truancy law in the wake of 26 arrests Monday.

School-age children found on the street were given the choice of going to school or facing arrest. Those arrested were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Clark said the pupils were not bothered while they were on church property or inside the church but were questioned when they reached the street and ordered to go to school or face arrest.

He said 431 Negro pupils were absent Tuesday from Hudson School.

NOT ANOTHER ONE!!!

The Portland, Ore., zoo got its fourth baby elephant in 18 months. The birth of the first one in April, 1962 was the first to survive in the U.S. in more than 40 years. Here the ponderous mother Tuy Hoa wraps her trunk protectively around the new calf, left, a beary eyed, not so little female. The smaller elephant, right, was born last week to Pet and weighed 155 pounds. They're both offsprings of the bull Thonglaw. Neither of the new arrivals have names yet. The first two were named Packy and Me-Tu.

Vegas Police Hold Man In Killing, Shooting, Rape And 2 Auto Thefts

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — A man wanted for questioning about a killing, another shooting, two auto thefts and a rape was arrested in Las Vegas, eliminating a five-day, nationwide manhunt.

David Zirwas, 28, of Youngstown, Ohio, was captured Monday night. Police say he had fired three bullets into a hitchhiker and left him for dead near Las Vegas.

But the hitchhiker, 16-year-old Terry Houck, crawled to a highway with wounds in the cheek, chest and arm. After five hours he managed to flag down a car.

He gave officers a description of Zirwas' car.

Houck, of Independence, Kan., was in serious condition at a hospital after an operation. Police said he is expected to recover.

Las Vegas officers gave this account:

Zirwas robbed and killed Ben Krawiecki, 46, a vending machine service man, at Niles, Ohio, last Thursday. He took $100 and fled in the dead man's car.

An hour later, a man of Zirwas' description robbed a barbershop of $35 at gunpoint after getting a haircut.

A few hours later, Zirwas accosted Mrs. Mary Lou Borowice, 27, and her escort in a lover's lane at Lake Milton. He threw away a pair of crutches belonging to Cornell Allen, 28, who had his leg in a cast. He pistol-whipped Cornell and dumped him out of the car.

Then he drove to a secluded spot, raped Mrs. Borowice, and fled in the couple's car.

Las Vegas police said Zirwas was denied only the rape.

Houck, who was hitchhiking to Riverside, Calif., to visit his mother, got a ride with Zirwas in Arizona.

J.A. Paul Gulas said Zirwas shot Houck because Houck wouldn't take part in a robbery with him.

"They apparently talked about going on a robbery spree in Las Vegas but Houck wouldn't do it. They argued. Then they got out of the car on the pretext that they were going to shoot some rattlesnakes. That's when Houck got shot."

Ran Red Light

Officers were just about to arrest Zirwas when he got into his car near the downtown train depot and ran a red light, they said.
